ICMR ISSUES NEW TESTING STRATEGIES

Expanding the testing criterion for coronavirus, the Indian Council of Medical Research, in an advisory on 'Newer Additional Strategies for Covid-19 Testing' on Tuesday, said testing should be made widely available to all symptomatic individuals across the country. Besides, it also recommended deployment of rapid antigen detection tests for Covid-19 in combination with RT-PCR tests.

B'luru under lockdown? Cabinet to decide today

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

WITH the number of Covid-19 positive cases increasing steadily, specially in Bengaluru, and many localities and towns voluntarily shutting down, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa is expected to take a decision on the way forward when his Cabinet meets on Thursday. Several lawmakers from the city, including from the BJP, too have appealed to the CM to impose a lockdown in the city for 15 days.

As things stand, the State Government has directed officials to strictly enforce lockdown norms in places where there are more number of cases. The CM had earlier ruled out the possibility of continuing with the lockdown and had stated that his government will take all necessary measures to contain the spread of the Covid-19 pandemic, even as it takes steps to boost economic activities.

With businesses opening up under Unlock 1.0, the government is seeing green shoots in the revenue stream and the CM is likely to take a calibrated approach to tackling the pandemic while boosting the economy. Revenue Minister R Ashoka too is not in favour of a lockdown as it will hamper revenue collection.

Urban co-op banks in RBI grip

Cabinet okays ordinance route for central bank's supervision; 8.6 cr customers secured

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

THE Union Cabinet on Wednesday approved an ordinance to bring 1,482 urban cooperative banks and 58 multistate cooperative banks under the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI) ambit.

RBI supervision will begin from the date the President grants his approval, Information and Broadcasting Minister Prakash Javadekar said at a virtual press conference after the Cabinet meeting. The ordinance will help protect the savings of about 8.6 crore customers of these banks, who collectively hold ₹4.84 lakh crore in deposits.

The proposal was announced by Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman in her budget speech, in the wake of the Punjab and Maharashtra Bank fiasco last year. In February, the Union Cabinet amended the Banking Regulation Act to strengthen cooperative banks.

The Cabinet also approved two schemes announced by Nirmala under the Aatmanirbhar Bharat package last month, including the establishment of an Animal Husbandry Infrastructure Development Fund and 2% interest subsidy under the 'Shishu' category of the flagship Pradhan Mantri MUDRA Yojana (PMMY).

The Animal Husbandry Infrastructure Development Fund, with a corpus of ₹15,000 crore, will be used to help animal husbandry, improve milk production, boost exports and create jobs. The Centre will provide 3% interest subvention to eligible beneficiaries.

Javadekar added that this will help create 35 lakh jobs.

Borrowers under the 'Shishu' category of the Mudra scheme already get collateral-free loans of up to ₹50,000. They will now get 2% subsidy for outstanding as on March 31, for 12 months, Javadekar said. The scheme is meant to incentivise people who regularly repay their loans.

The PMMY was launched by Modi on April 8, 2015, for providing loans up to ₹10 lakh to non-corporate, non-farm small and micro enterprises.

The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs on Wednesday approved additional investment of $121.27 million (about ₹909 crore) by ONGC Videsh Ltd for further development of two blocks in Myanmar. This will be used for the Shwe oil and gas project in the Myanmar blocks. OVL had invested $722 million as of March 31 last year in the project.

The Cabinet meeting also decided to extend the tenure of a commission that is examining the issue of sub-categorisation within the Other Backward Classes, by six months - till January 31, 2021.

GROWTH SHOCK

India's GDP to contract by 4.5% this year: IMF

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

INDIA'S economy is going hell for leather with the IMF projecting FY21 GDP growth to contract by 4.5%. Such a sharp revision from its April estimate of 1.9% growth offers a withering assessment of the economic slowdown prolonged by the pandemic-induced lockdown and slower recovery.

But IMF's latest World Economic Report estimates, in its own words, are inscrutable due to a higher-than-usual degree of uncertainty, which is to say that the actual growth decline could be fiercer than all forecasts.

Global growth too is projected to shrink 4.9% in 2020 as against its previous estimate of 3%. But the startling news is not so much about the extraordinary collapse in growth, but its recovery, the direction of which the multilateral agency has no hold on.

Amid talks, China keeps up its blame game

PUSHKAR BANAKAR & MAYANK SINGH @New Delhi

INDIA and China on Wednesday held diplomatic talks and agreed to maintain communication to resolve the existing situation peacefully, even as the Chinese defence ministry and foreign ministry continued to blame India for the June 15 violent face-off and reiterated their claim to the Galwan Valley area.

Also, Chinese defence ministry spokesperson Wu Qian's claim that the defence ministers of both sides were in communication over phone after the June 15 incident, was rubbished by India. "No conversation took place between the two ministers," sources in the Defence Ministry said.

At the June 15 meeting of the Working Mechanism for Consultation and Coordination on India-China Border Affairs, the Indian side was represented by Joint Secretary (East Asia) Naveen Srivastava, while the Chinese delegation was led by the director general of the department of boundary and oceanic affairs of the Chinese foreign ministry.

"The two sides discussed in detail the developments in the India-China border areas, in particular the situation in Eastern Ladakh. The Indian side conveyed its concerns on the recent developments in Eastern Ladakh, including on the violent face-off in Galwan Valley area on June 15 that had resulted in casualties. In this regard, it was emphasised that both sides should strictly respect and observe the Line of Actual Control (LAC)," a statement from the Ministry of External Affairs said.

Earlier, the Chinese defence ministry demanded that Indian troops be withdrawn from Galwan Valley and accused Indian diplomats and media personnel of spreading 'large amounts of fake news'. P9

HEAVY BIZ ACTIVITY DRIVES BBMP TO SHUT MORE MARKETS

Palike says crowds make distancing difficult, shuts Kalasipalya, KR Market for 14 days

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

AS the city continues to see a spike in Covid cases, the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) on Wednesday notified that Kalasipalya and KR Market will be closed down for 14 days.

The roads and areas which come under this and will be sealed down, include Town Hall Circle, J C Road, AM Road, Kalasipalya Main Road, KR Market Junction, Service Road, Tharagupet Road — 2nd and 4th Main Road, Tipu Sultan Palace Road, Bhashyam Road, Srinivas Mandiram Road, Kilari Road, Anjaneya Temple Street, Sankalpet Road and SJP Road.

The notification reads, "Because of heavy footfall and high economic activity, it is extremely difficult to maintain physical distancing and monitor the movement of people and vehicles in the market area. Given the narrow roads and the congregation along with mixed land use, it has been identified that strict sealing down is necessary for effective monitoring and enforcement of national directives to control the spread of the pandemic."

The notification also directs closure of all types of commercial establishments, including restaurants, hotels and roadside vendors, local shops and grocery vendors. Inside the sealed down zones, religious places, flower markets, liquor shops and other shops should be closed.

Restrictions do not apply for essentials like milk, newspaper, vegetable, groceries, bread products and meat stores along with fair price/ration shops. Exemption is also given to SSLC exam centres, hospitals, medical establishments and clinics.

Confusion continues over closure of Chickpet

ENS @Bengaluru

CONFUSION continued to prevail for the third consecutive day on Wednesday over the closure of Chickpet market. While CM B S Yediyurappa on Monday said that with the rising number of Covid-19 cases, Kalasipalya, KR Market and Chickpet will be closed, many traders out of panic had voluntarily closed some areas around Chickpet. The CM had ordered closure of these areas for 14 days. However, some traders were not convinced and said since no orders were issued, Chickpet would remain open.

Congress MLA Dinesh Gundu Rao on Wednesday visited Chickpet market and interacted with traders. He said citizens could go there for shopping and that he had spoken to the police and officials. "Only the building or complex where positive cases are reported will be closed," he added.

But a couple of hours later, BBMP Commissioner B H Anil Kumar issued a statement saying that following the CM's directions, the three markets are being closed. He said, "To end the confusion, another order specifying the areas is being issued. Will those saying the markets should be open take responsibility to ensure there are no more cases and that all norms are adhered to?" Chickpet is already in the containment zone list, he said.

Following the Commissioner's orders and on the traders' request, the markets division of BBMP closed the three markets.

Ongoing construction work for Metro Phase-II on Cubbon Road in Bengaluru

Cubbon Road will open to traffic soon

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

VEHICLE users on the spacious and scenic Cubbon Road have been put to much inconvenience this past month due to the ongoing construction work for Phase-II of Bangalore Metro. A concrete deck being installed by Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Limited (BMRCL) at the junction of Cubbon Road and Kamaraj Road has halved the space on this stretch. Work is now set to be completed in a month's time.

The deck or bridge along the surface of the road will have an underpass beneath to connect the public to the upcoming MG Road underground station on the Nagawara-Gottigere Line. "Unlike in the case of Phase-I where steel decks were erected at Chickpet, Majestic and K R Market stations, which we had to remove after work was completed, we are putting up concrete decks here. A similar deck is also being readied at Vellara Junction," said Chief Public Relations Officer B L Yashvanth Chavan.

The sturdy deck, which runs 4m wide, is being laid in order to ensure that vehicular traffic need not be disturbed due to the underground work going on below, he added.

> The lockdown helped us carry out work faster than expected, due to the absence of vehicular traffic
>
> B L Yashvanth Chavan, Chief Public Relations Officer

Around 50 per cent of the work has been completed at both Vellara Junction and Cubbon Road. "Cubbon Road will be widened and fully opened to traffic within a month's time. In fact, the lockdown helped us carry out work faster than expected, due to the absence of vehicular traffic," Chavan said.

The underpass below will provide passage to the MG Road UG Station from the Army Public School side. "Passengers coming from Nagawara or Gottigere can alight at the underground station of MG Road and use the existing elevated station to reach any station on the East-West Line of Phase-I. This underground station is of crucial importance from the connectivity point of view," he added.

The other end of Kamaraj Road, that touches MG Road, has been shut since June 2019 and will remain so till June 2023, in connection with the MG Road underground station work.

After KGA, Bowring Club, KSCA to close too

IFFATH FATHIMA @Bengaluru

AFTER a member of Karnataka Golf Association (KGA) tested positive and the club was closed down on Tuesday, many other clubs followed suit, as a precautionary measure and also in lieu of the increase in Covid-19 cases.

Srikanth H S, President of Federation of Clubs in Karnataka and Secretary of Bowring Institute said, "We had a discussion with all the leading clubs and came to a conclusion that we need to close down. Bowring Club is closed and messages have been sent to members to temporarily put a halt on sports activities, shut salons and HOPCOMS from June 26."

Ramkrishna V, member of Bangalore Club committee said, "A meeting will be held to take a decision but it is most likely that we will close down too."

Karnataka State Cricket Association, Gymkhana club, Basavangudi Club have also taken the decision to close down.

50 more ambulances for Covid patients, says BBMP

BBMP Commissioner B H Anil Kumar announced on Wednesday that 50 more ambulances were drawn for Bengaluru to bring patients. Of these, six have been deployed in each of the eight zones, two as standby have been stationed at the BBMP head office. A special control room has been set up at the annex building in the corporation head office to track the GPS-enabled ambulances. Eight epidamologists have been deployed to trace primary and secondary contacts. The corporation and health department officials said that Command Hospital on Old Airport Road, CV Raman Nagar Hospital, Jayanagar Hospital, Leprosy Hospital, ED Hospital and ESI Hospitals in Indiranagar, Rajajinagar and Peenya, would also be used for treatment and Covid Care Centre, based on the situation. Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

25th June : Today's excitable alignments are perfect if you want to ditch your current arrangements and come up with schemes which are even grander. Remember, though, it's one thing to dream, quite another to put your dreams into practice. The traditional advice is the best advice: look before you leap!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Don't expect everything to be easy, because it won't be! On the other hand, if you get stuck into life's little problems with the right mixture of compassion and determination, you could settle a series of difficulties at a stroke. Life is like that sometimes!

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
The fact that there could be a gradual relaxation of your overall mood doesn't mean that you should let up your guard. While certain people will be all sweetness and light, some individuals will be out to create havoc. Steer a careful course, and avoid the traps set for others.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Everything now focuses on your personal life, and if you know what's good for you, you will nip domestic discontent in the bud. Don't be hard on people, but do be firm, including with yourself. A little bit of discipline and determination will enhance your chances.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Questions of cash drift to the front of your mind. If you wish to spend the day shopping, or even just window-shopping, that's fair enough. Although it looks as if necessities make a better buy than luxuries, the important thing is to pamper yourself - and feel good.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
If you do feel like sounding off at other people, then please make sure you hit the right target. If you are able to be completely saintly, and are in a mood to polish your halo, replace resentment and suspicion with compassion for the human predicament.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
There's a new set of lunar alignments approaching fast and, when it does finally arrive, it will signify an emotional turning-point. This, more than anything, is why you should welcome change rather than digging in your heels. There is nothing to fear, just as long as you keep your eye on the ball.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You should be just a little more cautious about making social commitments over the next few days, for when it comes to the crunch you would rather be by yourself. It's all a question of picking and choosing, and hanging out with the people who make you feel fine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Don't be bashful about being self-centred. If you don't promote your own interests when you have the chance, you'll be no use to partners at other times. Romance is the one area where you should put others' feelings first, just as long as you don't let them walk all over you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
It's not what happens to you that's important as much as what action you take on your own behalf. This is therefore one of those times when you can alter the world around you by rearranging your opinions, strange as it may seem. An improvement in attitude now leads to a change in action down the road.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Clear the decks of outstanding emotional business, ready for a positive end to an intimate phase. Deal with personal frustrations and financial passions today, and don't let other people push you into saying anything you'll regret. And if you're waiting for an apology, don't hold your breath!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
There are times when the emotional current knocks you sideways, but you have your feet planted firmly on the ground at the moment. You should therefore be able to pick yourself up - and even feel better for the experience. In the background, by the way, family responsibilities are building up.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
This should be a routine sort of a day, which may not sound terribly exciting. But sometimes it's nice to surround yourself with the familiar. If you can keep your attention focused on essential activities, you'll create space for fulfilling your favourite pleasures later on.

POLITICOS SPOOKED AS PANDEMIC HITS CLOSER HOME

After minister Sudhakar's family members test positive, CM Yediyurappa, Leader of Opposition Siddaramaiah take extra precautions at home and office

A notice board outside Siddaramaiah's house states that outsiders are barred from entering the building | EXPRESS

ANUSHA RAVI @Bengaluru

THE increasing number of Covid-19 cases in Karnataka, especially in Bengaluru, has now started to worry those in the corridors of power as well. With the spike in the number of cases whose source of transmission is still untraceable, bureaucrats, ministers and politicians cutting across party lines are said to have been spooked. Covid-19 seems to have hit closer home after Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar's family tested positive earlier this week. Following the scare, right from Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa to Leader of Opposition Siddaramaiah have instructed their staff to take stricter precautions.

"Given the increasing number of cases and the spike in infection, there will neither be meetings nor entry inside for citizens. Request you to cooperate," says a makeshift cardboard placard hanging outside Congress leader Siddaramaiah's house in Bengaluru. He had undergone a heart surgery only last year and is taking all precautions to avoid public interaction. On Tuesday, he was sharing the stage with KPCC president D K Shivakumar and a host of Congress leaders.

The staff, officers and family members are said to be worried about the risk 78-year-old Yediyurappa runs every day as he meets citizens, officers and guests at his residence and offices. "People who come to visit, including officers, do not realise how crucial social distancing is and crowd around the CM," said a worried kin of Yediyurappa.

To address these issues of the Chief Minister's safety, his staff is working towards reducing the number of physical meetings in a day. On Wednesday, the Chief Minister's schedule was kept reserved with no official meetings or work. The CMO is also contemplating adding tables on either side of the CM's chair to stop people from crowding around him. Sources from his office suggest that the Chief Minister has already undergone Covid-19 tests at least twice in the last month and has tested negative. As a matter of precaution, the CM was tested for Covid-19 repeatedly given his continuous interaction with people and travel, they said.

Go desi, buy namma products: Minister starts tweet campaign

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

THE State is taking Prime Minister Narendra Modi's 'Vocal for Local' call seriously, and adopting it to encourage local industries and artisans. It's new mantra for the times: Use Made in Karnataka products.

Kannada, Culture and Tourism Minister CT Ravi has started a 'go desi' campaign to give priority to indigenous products. He is using the power of the tweet to advertise local items, right from Panduranga Coffee Works to Mysore Sandal Soap to Olympic tennis ball by Sohm Rubber Tech. Incidentally, the coffee company is located in Ravi's hometown Chikkamagaluru, and supplies coffee powder overseas, while the tennis balls are made in Hegde village in Kumta of Uttara Kannada.

The minister told TNIE that the government would adopt desi products wherever possible. "Back in the 1990s, I stopped drinking Coca Cola after listening to socialist Rajiv Dixit's speech. If we start promoting our products, the youth will buy desi, and we can contribute to our companies. I will also issue directions to tourism officials to buy Indian made soaps, shampoos, curtains and bedsheets for hotels and lodges run by KSTDC or Jungle Lodges and Resorts," he said. This is just the beginning, especially with a call to ban Chinese items.

Karnataka has an impressive list of products associated with its history and culture, including Mysore Sandal Soap, Ilkal sarees, Channapatna toys, Bidri works and many more. There are also thousands of manufacturing units across various sectors contributing to the state revenue. Over a period of time, these units were either sidelined or shut with cheap products flooding the market.

The government is also focusing on buying indigenous items as mementos for dignitaries, be it sandalwood carved items or Channapatna toys.

Congress leaders call Sudhakar to ask after family

ENS @Bengaluru

DESPITE the bickering inside and outside the Legislative Assembly, common courtesy seems to be alive and kicking among Karnataka's politicians.

On Wednesday, scores of Congress leaders dialled Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar to inquire about the health of his family, after his father, wife and daughter tested positive for Covid-19. Less than a year ago, the same Congress leaders had spewed fire at Sudhakar after he quit the party and joined the BJP.

Dr Sudhakar took to Twitter to thank Congress leaders for checking on his family's health. "Leader of Opposition Siddaramaiah, Dr G Parameshwara, R V Deshpande, K H Muniyappa, H K Patil, K Ramesh Kumar and a host of other Congress leaders called me to inquire about my family's health and filled me with confidence. My gratitudes to all (sic)," Dr K Sudhakar tweeted. The minister is in home quarantine.

Depression may have led to suicide: IAS officer's family

BENGALURU: The police investigating the suicide of IAS officer Vijay Shankar BM have found that he was depressed over the permission sought for his prosecution but have not reached a conclusion yet.

Initial enquiry of family members suggests that Shankar could have taken taken his own life due to depression. "The family claims that the officer was depressed after he was arrested last year. After his bail, he apparently did not interact much with family members. After his suspension was revoked and he was given a posting, he seemed well for a few days. But it did not last long as he learned that the CBI had sought sanction for prosecution against him," an officer said.

"He was upset by that and also feared that the CBI may take him to custody again. His family suspects that these factors might have driven him to take the decision," the official said.

"The postmortem was conducted on Wednesday after the test for Covid-19 came back negative," the police said. ENS

Ramanagara, Magadi join lockdown bandwagon

MEANWHILE, two days after state Congress president-designate and Kanakapura MLA D K Shivakumar appealed for a 'voluntary lockdown' in his constituency till July 1, Magadi and Ramanagara taluks also decided to join in on Friday. Vendors and other businessmen have decided to stop all economic activities and keep only essential services open between 7 am and 11 am.

At Shiggaon in Haveri district, hoteliers and vendors have voluntarily shut their businesses till the month-end and only grocery and vegetable shops will be open between 7 am and 9 am. Locals have appealed to the tahsildhar to impose a 15-day lockdown.

Senior Congress leader Ramalinga Reddy felt that the government made a mistake by lifting the lockdown when the number of Covid-19 cases were increasing. Ideally, it should have done when the number of cases start decreasing, he said.

Nelamangala JDS MLA Dr K Srinivasamurthy has called for a meeting with the local authorities on Thursday to discuss the lockdown in his constituency.

20 PVT HOSPITALS TOLD TO TREAT COVID +VEs

One branch of each corporate facility to be dedicated to corona treatment; Non-Covid patients to be shifted to other branches

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

A SURGE in cases, particularly in Bengaluru, has forced the state government to direct leading private hospital chains to offer one of their branches each in the city to be devoted completely for Covid-19 treatment in the next two days.

The Health & Family Welfare Department has chosen 20 such hospital chains and issued a circular on Wednesday, stating, "...you are requested to indicate within 48 hours the hospitals which will be designated as dedicated Covid hospital with the name and details of the contact person."

These corporate hospitals also have to give details like beds, high-flow nasal cannulas, intensive care units (ICUs) and ventilators at these branches.

Non-Covid patients from these branches have to be shifted to other hospitals or branches which would remain focussed on treating non-Covid cases.

Over the last few days, Bengaluru Urban has constantly remained the top contributor to the number of cases added in the state. On Wednesday too, of the state's total cases of 397, Bengaluru Urban contributed 173, and the city has the highest tally of 1,678 in the state's total 10,118. In terms of deaths too, Bengaluru leads with 78 of the state's toll of 164.

The sudden surge has put tremendous pressure on government hospitals, which are running out of ICU beds. On Wednesday, Bengaluru had 63 Covid-19 patients in ICUs, and in anticipation of a further surge in cases and to ensure that they do not run out of ICU space for treating critical patients, the state's health department requested private hospital chains to set apart one branch each to meet the rising requirement.

Patients struggle to get admitted, helplines fail

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

IN a dangerous indication that Bengaluru could be staring at a shortage of beds, Corona patients are facing a tough time trying to get beds in private and government hospitals.

"My husband had a fever and as it did not subside for three days, we got him tested. He was positive and was informed about it around 9 am on Wednesday. But no BBMP or health officials made follow-up calls, while we continued to make frantic calls to private hospitals till 12.30 pm. Some said they did not have beds, while others wanted to know whether we had insurance. Government hospitals did not pick up our calls. We were anxious as we also have my 75-year-old father in the house," said Rashmi (name changed).

A family member of another Covid patient said that his 56-year-old father was informed about being positive on Wednesday. They called private hospitals listed by the health department, but representatives said they had not started Covid treatment yet.

Rahul Francis, a do-gooder helping the family, said that when he called government helplines, they only asked the family to get the patient admitted. "For three hours, I tried calling everyone I knew, but to no avail," he said.

TNIE shared details of both patients with the health department, but no one contacted them. Finally using their personal network, both got admitted two different private hospitals.

Pankaj Kumar Pandey, Commissioner for Health, and Dr K Sudhakar, Minister for Medical Education, were unavailable for comments.

"Government hospitals are filled with asymptomatic patients. BBMP is setting up Covid Care Centres. This will be resolved in a day or two," said Jawaid Akhtar, Additional Chief Secretary, Health and Family Welfare Department.

"There is no shortage of beds. We have notified Haj Bhavan and other places as CCCs. Also, Wednesday was the first day BBMP flagged off 50 ambulances and there could be some teething problems. Normally, the BBMP war room instructs a separate team to shift a patient to a Covid hospital," said Dr Srinivas G, District Health Officer, Bengaluru Urban.

SPECIAL COVID HOSPITALS FOR DOCS, COPS, NETAS

Bengaluru: Three notifications were issued on Wednesday reserving hospitals for doctors, police personnel and politicians testing Covid-positive while performing their duties. One floor at Sri Sri Ravishankar Ashram in Kanakapura Road, which is a Covid Care Centre, is reserved for asymptomatic and mild symptomatic police personnel. ESI Hospital in Indiranagar will treat moderate and severe symptomatic police personnel. For elected representatives, ministers and senior ranking officers, one wing of Kumara Krupa guesthouse with 100 rooms of individual occupancy has been reserved. Visitors will be screened with infrared thermometer and pulse oximeter at the entrance. One-third of beds, ICUs and ventilators at Jayanagar General Hospital will be reserved for doctors.

Pvt hospitals, hotels hold talks over Covid Care Centres, latter unhappy

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

PRIVATE hospitals and hotels had a preliminary meeting on Monday, in the presence of Health Department officials, to discuss turning hotels into Covid Care Centres for asymptomatic patients.

"Private hospitals will pay hotels and recover the cost from patients. We are also working together to figure out the cost of deputing doctors and nurses to these hotels. The discussion was fruitful. We don't need much equipment for asymptomatic patients at these hotels, except for pulse oximeters, BP monitors and temperature checking devices. But medical staff has to be stationed 24/7," said Dr R Ravindra, president, Private Hospitals and Nursing Homes Association.

A government guideline on June 22 specified that one doctor has to be present for every 100 patients and one nurse for every 50 patients. The staff should stay at the CCC in a separate wing, work for two weeks at a stretch and then go home for one week after testing Covid negative.

But hotel owners are not keen on the idea. "Hospitals have asked us to study the requirements, but we will get back to them with our grievances. We can accommodate people under quarantine, but corona patients is a little tricky. Who will monitor medical symptoms, administer medicines and do check-ups? Hotels can't have other regular guests," said P C Rao, president, Bruhat Bengaluru Hotels' Association.

"Employees will not work as they will be scared. Our staffers have no knowledge of putting on and working in PPEs without food and bathroom breaks for six hours. They are not medically trained," Rao said, expressing anxiety.

If there is an emergency and hotels do not have the required equipment, he added.

The rates will have to take into account the cost of PPE kits and who will pay for them. Hospitals assured hotel owners that asymptomatic patients need only food and medicines.

Rly official throws bash for grandson, tests positive

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

A senior technician at the Bengaluru Railway Division has put over 100 people, including many children, at risk by hosting a birthday bash for his grandson at the Railway Quarters, in front of the Cantonment Railway Station. He tested Covid positive on Tuesday, two days after the party. Two more railway employees, not connected with the party, too have tested positive.

Terming the party as "highly irresponsible", Divisional Railway Manager (Personnel), Bengaluru Division, Asif Hafeez, said, "The technician, Saravanan, was suspended on Tuesday."

The party at his residence on Sunday was to celebrate the first birthday of his eldest son's child. "The quarters have 140 houses. Thankfully, none of the families attended the party. All were his relatives from outside, and no social distancing was maintained," Hafeez said.

As per the latest BBMP order, get-togethers can be organised only in emergencies with only 50 people. "He has violated the orders. He did not take permission from us and none of us knew anything about it. A birthday bash is definitely not an emergency," he said.

Another railway employee said, "Many children attended the party. It is really senseless on the family's part."

Another technician and a helper too tested positive on Tuesday. They were all made to undergo tests by the Railways as contacts of a Senior Section Engineer from Kengeri, who tested positive on June 22, are being traced. "All the three worked with him and have contracted the virus," an official said.

As on Monday, 20 people associated with the South Western Railway Zone have tested positive. They include present and former railway employees and their families. Two have died — one at Bengaluru and one at Bagalkot on Tuesday.

DOCS' ADVICE: GO ON SELF-IMPOSED LOCKDOWN

IFFATH FATHIMA @Bengaluru

STAY indoors -- this is the doctors' prescription for Bengalureans. The doctors' concern and the advisory comes in the wake of Bengaluru Urban recording 834 Covid cases in the last five days. It has so far recorded the highest number at 1,678 cases for a district in the state.

Till June 19, Bengaluru Urban was in the third position, after Kalaburagi and Udupi. But it is now it is in the first position. Even the daily growth rate of positive cases has increased in the last five days from 5.4% to 12.3%.

Doctors say it is time for a self-imposed lockdown. "It is likely the community transmission is on and the onus is on us to go for a self-imposed lockdown," said Dr Manohar K N, Consultant Physician, Manipal Hospital, Old Airport Road.

Dr Anil Kumar, Professor of Medicine, MS Ramaiah Hospital, said, "There is a surge in cases in Bengaluru and whoever can manage should stay at home at least for three weeks."

Dr Vishal Rao, a member of Covid Consultative Group, said, "Right now, the virus is 'social' and we shouldn't complement it. We need to be cautious and stay home and take precautions while going out."

Giridhara R Babu, Professor, Head, Life Course Epidemiology, Indian Institute of Public Health, Bengaluru, Public Health Foundation of India, said, "We need to follow the Japan way, where there was no lockdown imposed, but three Cs were followed – avoiding Closed Spaces with poor ventilation, Crowded places with many people and Close-contact settings such as close-range conversations."

Dr C N Manjunath, Director, Jayadeva Cardiovascular Sciences and member of Covid task force, said, "For the last 10 days we have seen the number of cases increasing and it's peaking. Wearing a mask should be made compulsory. Right now there is a surge in ILI cases and weather is also playing a role. People need to be more careful."

10,000-MILESTONE IS NOW BEHIND US

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

KARNATAKA swept past the 10,000-mark of Covid-19 cases on Wednesday, with the day's caseload of 397 pushing up the tally to 10,118. The State recorded the highest number of 14 Covid deaths in a day, with the death tally now at 164. The number of discharges was 149, while the total discharges are 6,151.

Among the 14 deaths, Bengaluru Urban reported five deaths — four women aged 50, 54, 59 and 70, and one man aged 68 — all diagnosed with Influenza Like Illness (ILI) and with symptoms of fever and breathlessness. Some had comorbidities like diabetes mellitus and hypertension. Ballari recorded four deaths — male patients aged 59, 73, 43 and 28. The cases were diagnosed with SARI and ILI.

Two male patients died in Ramanagara, aged 53 and 60, diagnosed with ILI and having symptoms of cough and breathlessness. Kalaburgi district had two deaths — male patients aged 78 and 55, diagnosed with SARI, cough and breathlessness, who expired on June 22. In Tumakuru, a 56-year-old male with SARI was admitted on June 22 and died the next day.

Among the 397 new cases, 75 were interstate passengers and eight were international ones. Bengaluru Urban recorded 173 positive cases, among which were 71 ILI cases, besides returnees from Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu and Bihar, and those who had travelled to Chitradurga and Tumakuru. Three patients returned from Qatar, while others were contacts of previous patients.

Ballari with 34 cases had five cases of ILI, one SARI, seven cases of 'contact under tracing' and the rest contacts of previous patients. Kalaburagi recorded 22 cases, including 11 Maharashtra returnees and two SARI cases. Ramanagara recorded 22 cases with 5 ILI cases, and travel history to Bengaluru. Udupi with 14 cases had nine Maharashtra returnees. Nine of 13 cases in Yadgir had returned from Mahrashtra, and four from Jammu and Kashmir. Dakshina Kannada with 12 cases had 7 ILI cases, one SARI and four travellers from Sharjah.

COVID WATCH

Covid +ve ASI waits 6 hrs for ambulance

Bengaluru: Shivajinagar Congress MLA Rizwan Arshad tweeted on Wednesday that an ASI on duty at Legislators' House who tested positive for Covid-19 on Tuesday was made to wait for six hours before an ambulance reached him. He was made to sit outside the gate before the ambulance arrived. "If this is the treatment being meted out to a frontline warrior within the Vidhana Soudha campus, it's anyone's guess how things are for the common man," he told TNIE. "This is happening because of mismanagement by the government. How can you claim shortage of beds when you had 2.5 months of lockdown to prepare for it," he added. BBMP Commissioner B H Anil Kumar said, "We are not short of ambulances and just announced 50 ambulances, 7 to 8 per zone. Some times, they need to go elsewhere before they come to pick up another patient." ENS

Ravi Shankar Ashram turned into CCC

Bengaluru: The Sri Sri Ravi Shankar Ashram on Kanakapura Road has been converted into a Covid Care Centre along with Haj Bhavan in Bengaluru. Hotels that were so far being used as quarantine centres, will also be converted to CCCs, announced BBMP Commissioner B H Anil Kumar on Wednesday. Both places have been kept ready with 430 beds each. A 1,000 beds have been arranged for hotels too. The commissioner said that Kanteerava Indoor Stadium, Koramangala stadium and Tripura Vasini centre in Palace Grounds have been kept on standby to use as CCCs if need be. ENS

HCQ helped Mandya fight virus: Officials

AJITH M S @Bengaluru

TILL last month, Mandya district had a record number of Covid-19 cases causing concern. But to everyone's surprise, it has been recording an impressive turnaround despite continuing arrivals from hot spot states. Health officials claim that one of the reasons is because they are giving hydroxychloroquine (HCQ) to all those quarantined, including the Maharashtra returnees. They also quoted the government guidelines which permit prophylactic usage of HCQ (prevention).

While the matter evoked mixed response from health professionals including concerns of side-effects on aged population as well as consent, top officials in the district declared it as a successful move, pointing at the reduction in number of cases. They claim that none of the patients recorded any side-effects.

At first, the district saw a rise in numbers with the Tablighi Jamaat members returning from Delhi. Later it saw a surge with the majority of Maharashtra returnees testing positive, taking the total to 373 so far. However, the trend dropped sharply from June first week with the active case count dropping to 39. This, even as it continues to see returnees from Mumbai in double digits.

A top health official said the returnees were given a dose of 400 mg HCQ twice on the first day of quarantine followed by weekly one dose along with good food. There was close monitoring before the first test conducted on the 10th day. A person in quarantine too said he was given HCQ.

Despite the debate around HCQ, officials on the condition of anonymity, claimed that fresh positive cases fell sharply and those who tested positive had only mild symptoms,. Asked about the side-effects, they said that unlike the claims, none of the people, including the primary and secondary contacts showed adverse effects so far.

A WHO official from the State and a senior doctor engaged in Covid treatment who did not want to be named opined that it was not a serious issue since health workers and police personnel are already given seven-week doses of HCQ as a preventive measure

On the other side, a senior official from the health department and renowned cardiologist Dr S P Yoganna termed it as an abuse of medicine. "Indiscriminate use is not recommended for everyone, especially those with cardiac issues, after all it is an immune modulator, it will not kill the virus," he said.

A Covid-19 patient (30) escaped on Wednesday morning from Victoria Hospital, where he was being treated, on the pretext of visiting the hospital canteen. VV Puram police said he spat on a security guard who tried to stop him. He was brought back to the hospital in a few hours. He had escaped to see his wife and family members.

SSLC exams a big test for govt

8.5 lakh students to write exams which begin today; 10 test +ve for Covid

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka government faces possibly its biggest challenge yet, that of conducting the first public board examination for 8.48 lakh students during a pandemic, and amid worry among parents that their children will catch the dreaded disease.

Despite the anxieties expressed by parents and students, the state government went ahead with the decision to hold exams with health measures in place.

Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar said, "The State government has made all necessary arrangements for the safe conduct of the SSLC exams. I request parents to send their children to exam centres without any anxiety. Officials and staff are working hard to ensure that exams are conducted safely. Precautions have been taken to ensure that not a single student gets infected."

However, 19 of 8,48,203 students set to write the exams from Thursday will not do so: Nine are in home quarantine and 10 have tested positive and are being treated.

At least 7,490 students are from containment zones. However, the government has shifted 27 examination centres located in containment zones in 11 districts to non-containment areas nearby.

Minister S Suresh Kumar inspects a school in Bengaluru on Wednesday | NAGARAJA GADEKAL

ALL THE BEST, CM WISHES STUDENTS

CM B S Yediyurappa on Wednesday advised students to wear masks, use hand sanitiser and maintain physical distance. "Write examinations with full confidence and without any fear or anxiety as the government has taken all necessary precautionary measures for conducting the examinations in view of the Covid-19 pandemic," he tweeted. Former CM HD Kumaraswamy, too, advised students to take necessary precautions.

Primary and Secondary Education Minister S Suresh Kumar, who inspected exam centres, said that students will write the exam at 2,879 centres across the state. With 501 containment zones in Bengaluru alone, the department has set up two examination centres in each taluk as back-up, in case any centre gets sealed off between June 25 and July 4. Students coming from containment zones and those with fever, cough or cold will be provided N95 masks, and seated in separate rooms.

Around 1.5 lakh personnel from the police and health departments have been deployed for security, and KSRTC staff will be on transport duty, Kumar said, adding that 5,755 health check counters have been set up.

Students have been asked to bring water bottles from home. If not, they will be given a water bottle at the examination hall, each of which will house only 20 students.

Trace residents of slum set on fire: HC to govt

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Wednesday directed the state government to inquire into the location of the residents of Kacharakanahalli to ensure their rehabilitation and the payment of compensation for the destruction to their huts which were set afire.

A division bench comprising Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Nataraj Rangaswamy passed the order while hearing a PIL.

"...this is a violation of the constitutional rights of those residing in huts," the bench said and asked the state to maintain the status quo of the land on which huts were built and to ensure that the remaining huts were protected.

The bench referred to an affidavit filed by the police, according to which, M N Reddy and Radhakrishna, owners of a wedding hall neighbouring the slum, had intended to use the land on which the huts stood for their business and parking. and conspired to set fire to about 40 vacant huts.

WITH every passing day, the situation continues to become increasingly grim in Tamil Nadu. On Wednesday, the state reported 2,865 more people testing positive for Covid 19 taking the total tally to 67,468. The state also reported 33 deaths taking the toll to 866.

Chennai alone recorded 1,654 cases, increasing the city tally to 45,814. Among the 2,865 people who tested positive for the virus, 91 were people who came to Tamil Nadu from other states or countries. Among the deceased, three didn't have comorbidities.

Meanwhile, Telangana is now the 12th state to have crossed 10,000 cases as it recorded 891 new cases. The state's overall tally is now at 10,444 cases with 225 deaths. In just nine days, the state recorded more than 5,000, primarily because of mass testing. At 10,444 cases, the test positivity rate is at 15.5%.

Andhra Pradesh reported its highest single-day spike with 497 more people testing positive and 10 more succumbing to the disease. The number of samples tested in a day also touched an all-time high of 36,047, according to a media bulletin issued by the state command control room. The state also recorded 146 recoveries taking the total number of recoveries to 4,779.

Among the fresh cases, seven journalists who had been reporting during the Covid-19 pandemic in Warangal tested positive on Wednesday. A total of 125 journalists in Warangal had submitted their swab samples for testing.

Odisha's COVID-19 tally increased to 5,752 as the state recorded 282 new cases, including eight NDRF personnel, from 17 districts of the state, a health department official said. Of the 282 fresh cases, 256 were reported from different quarantine centres where returnees were staying for preliminary observation and the remaining 26 cases were local contacts, the official said, adding that the contact tracing had been launched.

Eight NDRF personnel, who had returned from cyclone Amphan restoration work in West Bengal, also tested positive. As many as 276 personnel of disaster response teams of NDRF, ODRAF and Odisha Fire Service have been infected with the highly infectious virus.

Vikrant theft: Duo in judicial custody

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kochi

THE NIA Court in Kochi on Wednesday remanded two people arrested for theft at the under-constructed Indigenous Aircraft Carrier (IAC) in Cochin Shipyard to judicial custody.

The accused—Sumit Kumar of Bihar and Daya Ram of Rajasthan—were produced before the court following the completion of nine days in NIA custody.

Before producing at the court, both underwent Covid-19 test which came out negative.

In the report filed before the court, NIA submitted that microprocessor sold at online platform was recovered from a person in Muvattupuzha. Similarly, both were taken to Cochin Shipyard from where tools used for the theft were recovered.

The accused persons were also taken to a house in Alappat Cross Road where the stolen goods where kept after the theft. Both also had purchased computer goods from a shop at Ravipuram and the invoice of the purchase has been collected by NIA.

The duo are lodged at District Court in Kakkanad. They were remanded to judicial custody till July 9. The defence lawyer, appointed by the court, filed a bail petition which will be considered on July 9.

As many as 20 computer hardware pieces including RAMs, hard discs and microprocessors were stolen from the ship. All the stolen components have been recovered after the arrest of the duo.

'16 DALIT MURDER

Netizens troll wife online

ENS @Chennai

HER trauma is not over. She was the prime witness to her husband's murder, of which the main accused was her own father. The recent court verdict has hit her hard. As if that was not bad enough, Kausalya is now a subject of abuse on social media. She has been at the receiving end of these abuses ever since her husband Shankar, a Dalit by birth, was murdered in 2016.

The online trolls believe it is she who is to be blamed for Shankar's death, as Kausalya belonged to a dominant caste. Recently, the 23-year-old was also "slut-shamed" and threatened with murder after she revealed her plans to move the Supreme Court against the HC verdict acquitting her father Chinnasamy.

Though a large chunk of netizens including advocates, activists and politicians, have expressed their anguish over the order, an equal number of people, who mostly identified themselves as sympathisers of few political parties and intermediate and upper caste organisations, have welcomed the judgment.

Khader flayed for burying Covid victim sans precautions

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mangaluru

MANGALURU MLA U T Khader actively taking part in the burial of a Covid-19 victim from Bolur on Wednesday evoked sharp responses from the public who objected to him not wearing Personal Protection Equipment (PPE) and thereby sending a wrong message to society.

Khader, however, defended his action saying that he wanted to allay people's fears that by taking part in a burial, one will not contract the virus and said people should come forward to give a decent burial to their near and dear ones. But he admitted that it was not right on his part to participate without wearing PPE.

The former health minister said he was pained to learn that family members and relatives of many Covid-19 victims were not forthcoming to give them a decent burial out of fear of contracting the disease and instead were asking the department to do it.

He said that before taking part in the burial, he inquired with some doctors and they said he would not run the risk of contracting the virus by taking part in the burial.

"I was told that the virus will not spread from the body. Thorough wrapping of the body obviates the risk. When a Group-D employee or a driver can bury the body, why can't family members? But one has to take all necessary precaution, including wearing PPEs," he stressed.

TRUMP'S VISA BAN HITS INDIAN TECHIES, COMPANIES HARDEST

On Monday, US President Donald Trump signed an executive order to halt visas for foreign workers temporarily till the end of the year. Trump's order specifically targets H-1B and H-4 visas, which are given to employees in the technology industry and their families, as well as those applying for 'green cards' or permanent residency in the US. As many as 5.25 lakh people are likely to be denied entry. Skilled technology personnel from India will take the biggest hit. They come under the H-1B category, which gives them rights to residency for six years and purchase of property. Indians today account for around 2.78 lakh H-1B visas of the 3.88 lakh available, or 72% of the total. Fortunately, current visa holders will escape the axe, but those who had travelled abroad may not be able to re-enter the US.

The Trump order will also hit Indian tech giants like Wipro, Infosys and TCS, which use the H-1B visa to send staff from India and develop their business and projects in the US. Trump has argued that the US has a "moral duty to create an immigration system that protects the lives and jobs of our citizens". However, it is an open secret that the US administration is using the current adverse pandemic conditions to tighten the country's immigration laws.

Far from taking away American jobs, Google CEO Sundar Pichai has pointed out: "Immigration has contributed immensely to America's economic success, making it a global leader in tech, and also Google the company it is today." Thomas Donohue, CEO of the US Chamber of Commerce, has echoed Pichai saying putting up a 'not welcome' sign for engineers, executives, and IT experts would stop talent reaching US shores and ultimately harm the country's economy. For India, it is a denial of global opportunities for our most skilled personnel and therefore an unfair restriction on market freedom. India and Prime Minister Narendra Modi have good back-channel relations with the Trump administration, and it is hoped that these will be used for a rollback of these restrictive measures.

APATHY FOR WILDLIFE IN ODISHA

Amidst concerns globally that the coronavirus lockdown has increased wildlife poaching in African and Asian countries, it is time to drive home some unpleasant truths about Odisha. Elephants are being hunted down, and leopards have been poached, skinned and their hides sent out for sale.

The first half of this month saw the Special Task Force, an arm of the Odisha Crime Branch designated to take on organised crime, seize at least four leopard skins. The next seven days saw a spate of elephant deaths. Two jumbos were electrocuted by poachers who had laid electric wire traps, and a third one was found with bullet injuries. A report says that at least 14 elephants died in the state during the lockdown period and the Forest and Environment Department did not even have final reports from the districts about the cause of death. Two leopard skin smuggling cases were almost bordering on the bizarre—in one, a teacher was arrested for selling the hide; in another, it was a panchayat samiti member. The photo of a dead leopard being skinned by its poacher went viral. However, all these have not been enough to wake the Odisha government out of its slumber. In neighbouring Chhattisgarh, the death of six elephants in 10 days prompted the Bhupesh Baghel government to effect a massive shake-up in its forest bureaucracy. Of the nine IFS officers who were reshuffled, the principal chief conservator of forests (wildlife) was one. How did the Naveen Patnaik government react after the elephant deaths in Keonjhar? Two field staff were placed under suspension, while the top bosses continue to sit pretty.

There is a clear sign that wildlife conservation is in a state of collapse. Top-level policy implementation as well as monitoring has very little connect with protection on the ground. One of the largest elephant-bearing states, Odisha continues to report massive man-animal conflict. In the absence of strong enforcement, the incidence of poaching too has jumped. Annually, over 70 jumbos are killed by poaching, electrocution, train and road accidents in the state. The government, happy to push mining and industrial activities, has shown no interest in investing in officers who have expertise and training in wildlife protection. If the apathy continues, Odisha will shed more wildlife blood.

The unemployment situation can be tackled by providing skill development training at a much faster rate than is happening

UPSKILLING OUR NATION'S YOUNG WORKFORCE

ASHOKE K MAITRA
HR and Strategy Adviser to Industries

AMIT BANDRE

All developed countries have focused on building the skills and knowledge of their population for accelerating economic growth and social development in their nations.

India is in a sweet spot as far its demographics are concerned. As per the National Policy for Skill Development and Entrepreneurship, 2015, it was estimated that the average age of the population in India by 2020 would be 29 years as against 40 years in the US, 46 in Europe and 47 in Japan.

India has a great opportunity to supply a workforce to its industries and to the rest of the world. This is likely to attract foreign companies to set up industries in the country. The labour is affordable and the people are willing to work for longer hours than their counterparts in developed nations. The return of investment for a foreign company is much greater than it would be in other countries. In addition, English is one of the official languages, which makes it easy to work.

The Government of India, in the last few years, has taken positive steps to increase the ease of doing business, though there is still more to do along the lines of digitising land records, getting tax authorities to be more sensitive to foreign companies, reducing the cost of power, reducing GST, etc. It is working in the right direction.

The unemployment rate in India as per the Centre for Monitoring Indian Economy is 15.4% as of on June 20, 2020. In June 2019, it was 7.87%. Such a high unemployment figure is not good for any growing economy and it can create social unrest.

The unemployment situation can be tackled by providing skill development training at a much faster rate than is happening in the last few years. The National Skill Development Corporation (NSDC) needs to wake up to the reality of the nation and work much better.

Presently, only 2% of the total workforce in India have undergone skill training. Three-fourths of the youth in the country have never enrolled for a skill development programme. The Prime Minister's National Council on Skill Development recognised this fact and as an apex institution, aimed to skill 40 crore people by 2022 through its 'Skill India' programme.

The Pradhan Mantri Kaushal Vikas Yojana (PMKVY) is a great flagship skill training scheme of the Ministry of Skill Development and Entrepreneurship. The objective of this skill certification and reward scheme is to enable and mobilise a large number of youth to take up outcome-based skill training to become employable and earn their livelihood. The NSDC is the apex body to implement this scheme.

It appears the skills ministry and NSDC have had differences over the last few years. The ministry is also unhappy with the low percentage of placement of students under PMKVY, which is under the close watch of the Prime Minister's Office.

According to the PMKVY website, in 2016-17, NSDC trained 5,57,000 people but placed only 63,000—a success rate of less than 12%, against a requirement of 70%.

> Just providing skill training does not solve the problem. It needs to lead to employment. A model has to be implemented that provides such training to the youth and then ensures they are placed in jobs in industries, or provided with micro finance to start a small enterprise

According to the Planning Commission, 85% of the labour force in India has educational qualifications up to the secondary level, within which 55% have an educational qualification only up to the primary level and a mere 2% of the workforce has any vocational training.

A lot of educated job seekers also are unable to find jobs or are settling for jobs below their capability and expectation. When we combine the first-time job seekers (level-1 skill), and upskilling and reskilling requirements, the need for skill training acquires enormous magnitude and unprecedented urgency.

The Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry (FICCI) says, "The Indian skills ecosystem is maturing; and there is a strong intent from the new government to get all stakeholders aligned to the new ecosystem. However, coordination remains a key challenge. Clearly we need more action on the ground. We also need to identify skilling models that are workable at ground zero; learn from the practitioners who made a real difference and from projects that are innovative and scalable. The aim should be to create quality and productive employment opportunities."

Just providing skill training in itself does not solve the problem. It needs to lead to employment. A model has to be implemented that provides skill training to the youth and then ensures they are placed in jobs in industries, or provided with micro finance to start a small enterprise. They can also be provided with business management consulting support to become viable. There is a need to build entrepreneurship in the country.

It is extremely important to involve both public sector and private sector industries in every district where they are located. It should be made mandatory for these industries to provide training and stipend to the youth who reside within a 25 km radius of the factory under the Apprenticeship Training Act and then provide them employment. This will also offer a skilled workforce to the industry.

The skill training requirement is huge in India and the NSDC and other agencies need to work much faster, become more agile, responsible, accountable and transparent. It needs a leadership of those who are passionate about training and skill building.

KALGI, HOME TO RAGAMALA SCULPTURES & DILAPIDATED TEMPLES

RH KULKARNI
Professor, Dept of Art History, College of Fine Arts, Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath

Karnataka has a lot of ancient monuments that are part of its rich architectural tradition and sculptural heritage. But many of them remain unsung and unprotected. In this article, we will look at the group of Hindu temples and Jain monasteries in Kalgi in Karnataka's Gulbarga District. The village, also known for its natural springs that supply water to it, has more than 30 monuments datable to the Later Chalukya period. Many of them are now in a dilapidated state.

Inscriptions found here date from 1043 CE to the 13th Century CE, and refer to the Kalyan Chalukya kings Satyashraya, Vikramaditya VI and Jagadekamalla. The Kalyan Chalukyas patronised prolific construction activities during their rule in the 10th-13th centuries. The temples at Kalgi were built between the 11th and 12th centuries. They constitute a genre of architectural excellence and sculptural exuberance. They also evolved with the unique narratives of Ragamala sculptures that stand as precedents.

We now look at some of the important temples at Kalgi. The Neelakantha Kaleshwara is a living temple and has gone through renovations. The Suryanarayana temple, which is built of black schist, has beautiful wall sculptures. The Narasimha temple is right on the banks of a natural water spring. The Mallikarjuna and Siddeshwara temples are located amidst the village habitation.

The temples at Kalgi follow the variant of Dravida architecture popularly known as Karnata Dravida style. They consist of a garbhagriha, sabhamantapa and mukhmantapa. The Neelakantha Kaleshwara temple doesn't have a jagati (platform) while the other temples have raised adhisthanas and jagatis.

The majority of the temples in Kalgi are very badly preserved. The Suryanarayana temple is in an especially dilapidated condition and on the verge of collapse. The Siddeshwara and Mallikarjuna temples are being used as agricultural storages by locals. Most of the temples have lost their shikharas, probably because of their dilapidated condition or due to human vandalism. While the Jain temple is a large structure with a beautiful Tirthankara image in the garbhagriha, the Jain monastery is in a very bad state of maintenance. There is an urgent need for the conservation and protection of these monuments by the concerned and responsible government departments.

As we saw in the previous article The damsels of Karnataka's Jalasangvi (May 28), the temples of the Kalyan Chalukyas are primarily decorated with beautiful sculptures of Apsaras. The temples of Kalgi too have wonderful Apsara sculptures decorating the outer walls (bhitti). Here, the Apsaras are depicted as independent figures. They are holding musical instruments like lyre and mridangam. They are poised in gestures of singing and dancing.

The Neelakantha Kaleshwara has some very remarkable images of Apsaras. These sculptures have graceful, rhythmic and delicate standing poses. It appears as if their postures are frozen during dance movements. Some of these sculptures have inscriptions engraved right above their heads, which are directly connected to the Apsara figures. The inscriptions have compositions in praise of God Neelakantheshwara. The praises are in a specific Raga, musical metre, in which the compositions are sung. There are 12 Apsara sculptures on the outer wall of this temple, of which four sculptures have been identified by the present author as depicting ragas, based on inscriptional evidences. The ragas are Puriya, Dhanashri, Shri and Gurjari. These are classical ragas popular in those days, especially in Hindustani music. These Apsara sculptures have rhythmic and graceful postures. Each one of them has musical instruments and is in a dancing posture. Their musical chants create a kind of spiritual ambience in the temple. These ragas have contemporary references in the literary work Manasollasa (Abhilashitartha Chintamani), an encyclopedia compiled by Someshwara III (1127-1139 CE), son of Vikramaditya VI. Manasollasa has a dedicated section on music called Vinoda Vimshati, which documents the ragas and lakshanas (features of ragas). The artist and composer of inscriptions appears to have had a good knowledge of the visual and musical culture, which resulted in the depiction of beautiful Apsara-Ragamala sculptures.

In the Mughal, Daccan Sultan and Rajasthani traditions, we know that the Ragamala paintings were done in miniature style. Even Mysore Maharaja Krishnaraj Wodeyar III in his Sri Tattvanidhi in the early 19th century CE has dedicated a book on music with illustrations. However, the most significant thing is that the Kalyan Chalukya artist had imagined, conceived and depicted them in visual forms—the personifications of the ragas as Apsaras—much before any visual narration of ragas were dealt with. In ancient traditions, music is classified as Gandharva Vidya. So it is imperative to call the Apsaras Gandharva Kannikas with Gandharva Vidya. The Apsaras with musical instruments form part of temple rituals. They also have contemporary socio-religious implications as Devaganikas—in the service of the divine one. The Kalgi Ragamala sculptures thus form a new tradition, especially the genre of Apsaras having musical instruments, and give us a new dimension to gaze at and admire Indian sculptures.

Larger role in UN

It is laudable that External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar emphasised that India should be accorded a greater role in the UN in the virtual Russia-India-China conference. It is India's right to demand a larger role, especially as it is the second most populous country and has the most young people in its workforce.

Moment of pride for Kerala

The recognition bestowed on Kerala by the UN in its efforts to fight Covid-19 is something every Keralite can be proud of. It is another feather in the cap of K K Shailaja, the state health minister, as she was the only speaker from India.

Our stand towards China

This is with reference to Cannot go back to business as usual with China (Jun 24). The decision of senior commanders on both sides to return to their positions before May 2020 is welcome, though details still need to be ironed out. China's future course of action will dictate our stand towards the nation.

India has rightly decided to cut its official representation in Pakistan by half, along with asking Islamabad to reduce the strength of its High Commission in New Delhi. It is time we ignore that nation as much as possible.

Custodial deaths shocking

The report about the father and son in Thoothukudi in Tamil Nadu who died in police custody after being arrested for violating lockdown norms is horrifying. Custodial deaths have become common in the country in recent years. States should enact more stringent laws to prevent such cruel deaths.

Action against Patanjali?

That Patanjali started advertising its new medicine as a cure for Covid-19 before getting approval from the Ayush ministry is shocking. One wonders if any punitive action will be taken against the firm as its head seems to be one of the ruling dispensation's blue-eyed boys.
P G Menon, Chennai

Assess drug speedily

It would be naive to summarily dismiss Patanjali's claims as a hoax. Though the firm made the mistake of keeping the Centre in the dark about the drug, a speedy assessment of its potential is in India's best interests so that the nation has a better chance against the virus.

Djokovic is at fault

It is not surprising that tennis world No. 1 Novak Djokovic tested positive for Covid-19, along with top players like Grigor Dimitrov and Viktor Troicki. All of them took part in the Adria Tour, a tennis exhibition organised by Djokovic that disregarded all lockdown protocols. Djokovic is at fault for organising this event at such a time.

Covid not a joke

The picture of Djokovic standing among a group of people, all without masks, days before being tested positive shows that people with influence should not take the Covid scare as a joke.

US: PAK STILL A SAFE HAVEN FOR TERROR

State Dept report says Pakistan took only 'modest steps' to check terror groups

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

DESPITE the global condemnation and pressure it faced following Pulwama attack last year, Pakistan continues to be a safe haven for terror groups and took only 'modest steps' to curb terror financing and prevent India-focused militant groups from carrying out attacks, a US State Department report has revealed.

"Pakistan took modest steps in 2019 to counter terror financing and restrain India-focused militant groups from conducting large-scale attacks following the February attack on a security convoy in the Indian state of Jammu and Kashmir linked to Pakistan-based Jaish-e-Mohammed (JeM)," the report said.

In its Congress-mandated annual report on 2019 Country Reports on Terrorism, the US State Department said Pakistan took action against some externally focused groups citing the indictment of Lashkar e-Taiba (LeT) founder Hafiz Saeed and his associates in three terrorism financing cases. "However, Pakistan remained a safe harbour for other regionally focused terrorist groups," it said.

According to the report, Islamabad did not take any action against other designated terrorists like JeM founder Maulana Masood Azhar and Mumbai terror attack accused Sajid Mir. The report also accuses Pakistan of allowing groups targeting Afghanistan and India, such as the Afghan Taliban, Haqqani Network, LeT and JeM, to operate from its territory.

The report say Islamabad made some positive contributions in the Afghanistan peace process and also in complying with the Action Plan provided to it by terror financing watchdog FATF to avoid being blacklisted. "However, it did not complete the action plan," it said.

Noting that the operations of the al-Qaeda in Afghanistan and Pakistan and the Indian sub-continent were seriously hampered, the report said leaders of the outfit continue to operate from remote locations in a region that has served 'historically a safe haven' for them.

It said despite Islamabad's National Action Plan, which ensures no armed militia functions in the country, many terror groups that focus on attacks outside the country continue to operate from its soil.

> Government and military acted inconsistently with respect to terrorist safe havens throughout the country. Authorities did not take sufficient action to stop certain terror groups, individuals
>
> US State Dept report

"The government and military acted inconsistently with respect to terrorist safe havens throughout the country. Authorities did not take sufficient action to stop certain terrorist groups and individuals from openly operating in the country," the State Department report said.

It also noted that the suspension of aid to Pakistan announced in 2018 by US President Donald Trump continued to be in force throughout 2019. "However, a recalibration of our civilian assistance portfolio was implemented in 2019 to target a narrower set of priority areas: people-to-people exchanges, law enforcement and counterterrorism cooperation, ...fostering trade and economic growth, supporting civil society and helping treat polio and other infectious diseases," the report said.

LOCKED IN A FACE-OFF

Besides Pangong Tso and Galwan Valley, the two armies are also locked in a standoff in Demchok, Gogra Hot Spring and Daulat Beg Oldie in eastern Ladakh

FIVE SOLDIERS AWARDED FOR EXEMPLARY GRIT

Army Chief Gen M M Naravane on Wednesday awarded 'Commendation Cards' to five soldiers for displaying exem-plary grit and courage in dealing with Chinese troops in two separate clashes in Pangong lake and Galwan Valley, official sources said. The soldiers were conferred the award at a forward location in eastern Ladakh. Gen Naravane is on a two-day visit to Ladakh to take stock of the military preparedness in the wake of escalating tension following Galwan Valley clash.

New flashpoint? China now mobilising troops in Depsang along LAC

MAYANK SINGH @New Delhi

EVEN as India and China on Wednesday agreed to ensure expeditious implementation of the understanding on disengagement of troops from eastern Ladakh, a Chinese build-up has now been reported further north of Galwan Valley which could lead to shifting the Line of Actual Control.

Sources on Wednesday confirmed that the Chinese have moved their troops into the Depsang area. "The Chinese have mobilised their troops up to their point of claim in Depsang and they are supporting their claims this time with strong military back up," said a military source.

This is the fifth position of the standoff apart from the ongoing standoff at Finger 4, Hot Spring Sector and Patrolling Point 14 and 15 in Galwan Valley.

The Chinese have moved in heavy vehicles, tanks, artillery. The Indian Army has also mobilised accordingly with troops and equipment including the armoured vehicles and the artillery being moved, said sources.

Both sides have also brought in also their air assets closer to the areas from where air support, in case of need, will be quick.

Depsang came into light when the Chinese came and had camped there in 2013.

A senior Army officer who has served in the area said PLA's presence in that area will affect our patrolling over an area of about 80 to 90 square kilometers. "They can prevent our soldiers from reaching 5 to 6 patrolling areas easily and each of these cover an area of 10 to 15 square kilometers."

The officer said "we will not be able to go to the Patrolling Points 10, 11, 11A, 12 and 13 if the Chinese troops are there because our route to the patrolling points is through one point and they are at that point".

Another officer affirmed that the Chinese are not going to occupy those areas which are out of their claim areas. "We have not read the Chinese intentions well. Finger 4 is their claim point, in Galwan they are up to their claim point with a little tweak to tactically suit their position with ingress into our territory," said a source.

Can't afford to lose Galwan, says kin of man valley is named after

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

MOHAMMAD Amin Galwan, grandson of Ghulam Rasool Galwan — the Ladakhi explorer on whose name the Galwan Valley lying along the LAC has been named — asserted that the Galwan Valley was, is and will remain part of India. If diplomacy fails to resolve the ongoing standoff, the government should not shy away from going to war to wrest control of the Galwan Valley and other Indian territories currently under control of China, he said.

Mohd Amin, a retired government employee, told said the Galwan Valley is strategically very important for India and under no circumstances should the Army should allow its control to be with the PLA troops. "Even after the 1962 war, Galwan Valley remained with India," he said.

The Valley was named after Ghulam Rasool Galwan by the British in 1893-94 after he found path to the area and helped rescue a group of British explorers who were caught in a dead-end on a mountain during their expedition through the treacherous Himalayas.

Mohd Amin said all sections of society in Ladakh, including Muslims, Buddhists and other communities, stand solidly behind the Indian troops and are ready to help them in case of military confrontation.

He, however, cautioned that if the government allows China to take even a few inches of the Galwan Valley, then tomorrow the Chinese troops may enter Leh. "Under no circumstances should we cede control of Galwan Valley or any part of Pangong Lake to China. If that happens, India will always be facing a bigger threat," he said.

Mohd Amin said India should give diplomacy a chance to restore control over Galwan Valley as war would lead to large scale devastation on both sides. "But in case diplomacy fails, India should not show any weakness and should not shy away from going to war."

4,000 domestic violence plaints in Maharashtra

Maharashtra government received over 4,000 domestic violence complaints and 25,000 phone calls to government helpline for help in last three months, recording a jump in such complaints during the lockdown. The calls to the government helpline were mainly related to the financial crisis, not getting foodgrains on time and starving children. "The pandemic and job losses were the major reasons behind these cases. The consultants called the husband and wife separately... All issues were sorted out amicably while a few went to court," stated the report.

PMGKRA: Govt appoints 116 nodal officers

NEW DELHI: The government has appointed 116 senior officers as central nodal officers to coordinate the functions of state agencies in achieving the objectives of the Pradhan Mantri Garib Kalyan Rojgar Abhiyaan. These officers have been made in-charge of one district each of the states where the Abhiyaan is being implemented. The 125-day long Abhiyaan will involve focused implementation of 25 categories of works in 116 districts in six states — Bihar, UP, MP, Rajasthan, Jharkhand and Odisha.

Trinamool MLA dies one month after testing positive

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kolkata

TRINAMOOL Congress MLA from Falta in South 24-Parganas, who tested positive for Covid-19, died on Wednesday. Tamonash Ghosh, 60, a three-time MLA, was under treatment for past one month at a private hospital. His condition deteriorated three days ago. The hospital authorities said Ghosh died of multi-organ failure.

Condoling Ghosh's death, CM Mamata Banerjee tweeted, "Very, very sad. Tamonash Ghosh, 3-time MLA from Falta & party treasurer since 1998 had to leave us today. Been with us for over 35 years, he was dedicated to the cause of the people & party. He contributed much through his social work. He has left a void that will be difficult to fill. On behalf of all of us, heartfelt condolences to his wife Jharna, his two daughters, friends and well wishers."

According to party sources, Ghosh was suffering from heart and kidney ailments. "He was admitted to the hospital on May 21 and his Covid-19 test report came positive next day. He developed respiratory problems a few days later and was shifted to the intensive care unit. On Sunday, his condition deteriorated and we put him on ventilator," said a doctor.

BJP's Bengal unit used Ghosh's death to target the state government. "The state government failed to save its own MLA's life. Ghosh's death reflects nothing other than the deteriorating condition of healthcare services in Bengal," said state BJP chief Dilip Ghosh addressing a virtual rally.

Covid cases break yet another 24-hr record

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

AFTER a brief decline in the surge of fresh coronavirus cases, the new daily tally touched a record high on Wednesday yet again with 15,968 cases reported within a day. The daily death count in the preceding 24 hours was 465, taking the toll to 14,476. India now has 4,56,183 confirmed cases of whom 1,83, 022 are active and 2,58,685 have recovered.

With no sign of abetment in the pandemic, the government has intensified its testing strategy. The country's nodal agency for the pandemic, in the document 'Additional Strategies for COVID-19 Testing' issued late Tuesday, asked healthcare settings to start using antigen-based testing kits, in addition to the gold standard RTPCR test, to diagnose the disease.

The latest advisory said that all government and private medical colleges, government hospitals, accredited private hospitals and diagnostic laboratories approved to do the testing should also use the antigen-based testing methods.

On June 15, the apex health research agency had validated the first antigen-based testing kit in India that allowed infected patients to be diagnosed much faster, at lower rates and without laboratory examinations of the samples.

So far, antigen testing kit — which can detect presence of molecules of the pathogen that triggers immune response in an infected person — of only one private firm, SD Biosensor, has been validated and was initially recommended for containment zones and high-risk patients in hospitals.

SKILL BUILDING

Crash course to train the workforce for Covid diagnosis

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

AS Covid-19 cases rise in the country, a research institute under the Department of Science & Technology (DST) has launched a crash course in molecular diagnosis of infectious diseases focusing on coronavirus.

Jawaharlal Nehru Centre for Advanced Scientific Research (JNCASR), Jakkur has established a state-of-the-art Covid Diagnostic Training Centre to help build capacity for the national fight against the pandemic. The course is designed to impart theoretical knowledge as well as hands-on training.

"Molecular diagnostic techniques, such as the real-time PCR, play a crucial role in the diagnosis and tracking of epidemics, including COVID-19. Unfortunately, India lacks personnel skilled in and adept at performing a real-time PCR in clinical diagnostics," said the DST.

The primary objective of the program is to train multiple batches of trainees, 6-10 trainees per batch, in real-time PCR. The practical laboratory sessions have taught the participants the processing of infectious samples, nucleic acid extraction and preservation, real-time PCR and other molecular techniques, data analysis, and, importantly, standard operating protocols (SOP) of a clinical diagnostic facility.

'Licence issued to Patanjali for immunity booster, not Covid drug'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi /Dehradun/Jaipur

PATANJALI Ayurved Ltd faces the risk of losing the licence granted for its new drug Coronil, which the company touted as an effective cure for Covid-19. According to Uttarakhand Ayurveda Department, the Baba Ramdev-promoted company did not mention it was developing a drug for Covid-19 while applying for the licence. It is planning to issue a notice to Patanjali and if the company fails to provide a satisfactory response, the licence would be cancelled, the authority added.

"We didn't issue any licence to them for developing a Covid-19 medicine. Patanjali applied for a licence for immunity booster kits only. If we do not get a satisfactory response from them, then their licence will be cancelled soon," said YS Rawat, joint director, Uttarakhand Ayurveda department's licensing authority.

On Tuesday, Patanjali had launched a Corona kit with the medicines Coronil and Swasari, with Ramdev claiming 100 per cent favourable results during trials.

Hours after the kit was launched, Union AYUSH ministry asked Patanjali not to advertise or publicise it. On Wednesday, AYUSH minister Shripad Naik Shripad Naik said Patanjali coming with the medicine was a "good initiative" , but due process had to be followed.

Officials said they are currently probing if there were any violations in the context of the claims. "Based on our probe, we will issue a notice to them seeking details of how they got the permissions to make the kit," Rawat added.

The state government had sent all the documents related to the issuance of licence to Patanjali to the AYUSH ministry, as requested. Ramdev clarified that all documents requested by the ministry had been submitted. "There has seen some miscommunication in the whole process. We have followed all procedures. Documents sought by the Union ministry of AYUSH have been already submitted," he said.

Trouble is also mounting for Patanjali and NIMS Hospital in Jaipur which reportedly collaborated with the Patanjali Research Institute for the clinical trials of the medicine. The state health department termed the clinical trials as illegal and has served a notice to hospital. Jaipur's Chief Medical and Health Officer Dr Narottam Sharma asserted that no official permission was sought or obtained for the so-called trials by Patanjali or by NIMS.

24 lakh TB cases registered in India last year

Largest proportion of increase in notification came from private sector which notified 6.79 lakh cases, says report

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

A whopping 24 lakh new tuberculosis cases were notified in India last year while less than 80,000 of about 4.4 lakh estimated disease related deaths were officially recorded, according to the latest TB report.

Released by Union health minister Harsh Vardhan, India TB report 2020 said the largest proportion of increase in the TB notification came from the private sector which notified 6.79 lakh cases in 2019, nearly 28 per cent of all notifications.

India has the highest TB burden country in the world. It has an estimated incidence of 26.9 lakh cases in 2019. TB is one of the biggest public health challenges in India, claiming tens of thousands of lives every year.

Policy makers have set a target of eliminating TB by 2025, five year ahead of the global target, an aim that many experts believe might be near impossible to achieve.

The record 24 lakh notification last year marked an increase of over 14 per cent as compared to 2018, the report has said. Of the cases notified last year, 21.6 lakhs were incident TB cases which means new and relapsed or recurrent cases. "This translates to an incident notification rate of approximately 159 cases per lakh against the estimated incidence rate of 199 cases lakh population; thus, closing the gap between the estimated and notified incident cases to just 40 cases per lakh population, or an approximate of 5.4 lakh missing cases," the report said.

This increase in cases was observed across all aspects of TB Notification. Also, similar to trends in the previous years, over half of the total notifications are contributed by five states — Uttar Pradesh (20%), Maharashtra (9%), MP (8%), Rajasthan (7%) and Bihar (7%).

Of the cases notified last year, 94.4 per cent were initiated on treatment and a total of about 27.74 crore population were screened yielding diagnosis of additional 62,958 cases.

Under a government scheme to provide nutritional support of ₹500 per month as Nikshay Poshan Yojana to all TB patients through direct cash transfer, nearly 38 lakh beneficiaries were paid incentives totalling more than ₹553 crore till December 2019.

Due to easy availability of molecular diagnostics, the proportion of children diagnosed with TB increased to 8 per cent in 2019 compared to 6 per cent in 2018. Also, provision of HIV testing for all notified TB patients increased from 67 per cent in 2018 to 81 per cent in 2019.

Improvement in treatment

As per the India TB report 2020, expansion of treatment services has resulted in a 12 per cent improvement in the treatment success rate of notified patients across the country. For 2019, it is 81 per cent compared to 69 per cent the previous year

We as a nation, need to come together to fight TB and its stigma so that every patient can seek care with dignity

BJP leader Devendra Fadnavis said he would write a book on Maharashtra politics

'NCP boss ditched us at last moment'

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @Mumbai

FORMER Maharashtra CM and Leader of Opposition Devendra Fadnavis dropped a political bombshell as he claimed that NCP boss Sharad Pawar was a part of the discussion to form the government in November last year.

Talking to political analyst Raju Parulekar, Fadnavis said both Ajit and Sharad Pawar were part of the discussion to form the government in Maharashtra. He added that it was the NCP chief who had come up with the proposal. However, Sharad backed out at the eleventh hour and formed the government with the Shiv Sena and the Congress.

Fadnavis also said that the Supreme Court's verdict of open ballet for the Speaker's election went against them during the whole political tussle. "If the verdict was in our favour, we would have proved the majority on the floor of the House," he said.

When asked about the description of these political developments in a book, Fadnavis said that he has also decided to write a book that will have more details and political bombshells.

Talking about the events described in the book, Fadnavis said that the BJP and the NCP had attempted to come together in 2017, but PM Narendra Modi was against ditching old ally Shiv Sena then.

Ajit Pawar was in favour of forming the government with BJP. He wanted to give the stable government in Maharashtra

Devendra Fadnavis, BJP leader

"In 2017, there were a couple of meetings but things did not work out. The same thing was tried in 2019. Sharad Pawar ditched us despite coming up with the proposal of forming the government. He changed his decision at the eleventh hour," Fadnavis said.

"Then, Ajit Pawar approached Amit Shah and expressed the desire to form the government without his uncle. Ajit Pawar was in favour of forming the government with BJP. He wanted to give the stable government in Maharashtra."

Stricter plastic management in the offing for stakeholders

RICHA SHARMA @ New Delhi

IMPOSING a plastic generation fee, a penalty for failing to collect used plastic and a plastic credit trade mechanism are among the proposed guidelines by the Centre for brand owners, importers and manufacturers for management of plastic waste in India.

The Guideline Document Uniform Framework for Extended Producers Responsibility (EPR) by the Environment ministry calls for setting up a National Producer Responsibility Organization Advisory Committee (PROA), which will be a national authority to govern plastic waste management.

In 2019, PM Narendra Modi called for making India free of single-use plastic by 2022. India produces 9.4 million tonne of single-use plastic every year.

The Environment ministry has suggested several models which can be adopted by manufacturers.

The ministry also said penalties shall be imposed on producer, importer, brand owner for the portion of waste not collected as against the targeted collection. "A single national registry for registration of all stakeholders like producers, importers, brand owners, recyclers, etc with allocation methods to meet individual state data requirements. The program shall promote the inclusion of waste pickers in a manner which improves their working conditions and incomes," the document said.

SC asks six HCs to clear backlog of cases

New Delhi: Expressing concern over the pending criminal appeals especially in six high courts, the Supreme Court asked them to ensure quick disposal of cases. The six HCs are of UP, Rajasthan, MP, Bihar, Maharashtra and Odisha. The details sought include the total number of convicts awaiting hearing of their appeals.

Punjab parties against farm ordinances

Chandigarh: Barring BJP, all the political parties of Punjab resolved to appeal to the Centre to withdraw ordinances passed by it recently in public interest and not to tinker with the MSP regime. Though BJP opposed the resolution, its ally Shiromani Akali Dal decided to partially endorse it, choosing to go with the other parties.

Kanpur govt shelter home: 2 minors test -ve for HIV, Hep C

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE two inmates of a Kanpur shelter home, who had tested positive for HIV and Hepatitis C, have now tested negative for both the infections in the confirmatory tests on Wednesday.

Seven inmates of the government shelter home were found to be pregnant. Of those seven, five were among those 57 inmates who had tested Covid positive last week. Two of those five pregnant minors had also tested positive for HIV and Hepatitis-C in the initial screening.

Sources claimed that while the pregnant inmates, who had tested Covid positive, were taken to a specialised maternity facility where their samples were sent for confirmatory tests. As per the test results, the duo tested negative for HIV and Hepatitis-C. But, both Covid was confirmed in both cases.

Meanwhile, an FIR was lodged against unidentified persons for allegedly circulating false information about the shelter home.

The identities of the inmates were disclosed, it said, adding that the five pregnant girls were victims of sexual crimes.

Besides releveant sections under IPC, the police have invoked the Epidemic Diseases Act, the Disaster Management Act, and the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act.

TMC man held for trying to molest teen

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kolkata

A woman died while trying to stop two men, including a TMC leader, from molesting her teenage daughter on Tuesday night in West Bengal's Howrah district

The woman was pushed off the staircase of her house by one of the two suspects, police said, adding that she died on the way to a hospital.

Police arrested Kush Bera, the local TMC leader, and his accomplice.

"I went to the roof of our house around 11.30 pm on Tuesday. Suddenly, someone pulled my leg and I slumped on the roof. Another person gagged me with his hands. I somehow removed his hands and screamed for help. My mother ran towards the roof and suddenly one of them pushed my mother off the staircases. She fell off and became unconscious. The two jumped off the roof and fled away," said the girl.

Preliminary investigation revealed the duo knew that the teenager used to go to the roof-top and play video game on her cellphone. "It seems that they climbed up a tree and reached the roof-top," said a police officer.

Chirag Paswan makes CM ambitions known; BJP, JD-U leaders mum

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ Patna

LOK Janshakti Party (LJP) president Chirag Paswan may have little experiences in the politics of Bihar by his age but he definitely has an aspiration of becoming the chief minister, if he gets a chance ahead.

"Dreaming of becoming CM is not bad. And if I get a chance, I would definitely like to become the CM of Bihar," Paswan told a news channel on Wednesday

Chirag, the son of Union minister Ram Vilas Paswan , is an MP from Jamui district.

Incidentally, JAP leader Rajesh Ranjan alias Pappu Yadav. Yadav had made the NDA uncomfortable after announcing that his Jan Adhikar Party will support it if Chirag Paswan is announced as the CM face from Dalit community for the Bihar polls.

While Chirag admitted his political aspiration in pubic domain, all leaders of BJP and JD-U remained tight-lipped.

Chirag added that he did not face any problem Chief Minister Nitish Kumar as leader of NDA in the upcoming elections. "I have never said no to Nitish Kumar. It has now become clear after Amit Shah*Ji* announced it recently and the LJP has welcomed it."

But, he reiterated his commitment to continue raising public's problems for redressal. "I will continue raising questions and issues concerned to Bihar and people as a conscious ally of NDA. Though, nobody can deny the developments that took place, a lot remains to be done."

He categorically said that LJP is not in the Bihar government but supporting from outside. "Seats don't matter more to LJP than the faith of people. Our faith is in the leadership of PM Modi and the LJP is in alliance with BJP since 2014. Now, it is up to BJP to take care of this fact for an ally like the LJP."

'Manjhi welcomed'

When asked about a speculation of Dalit leader Jitan Ram Manjhi's return to NDA, Chirag said that Manjhi was like a family member to him and his return to NDA will give strength to Dalit representation

Cancel final-yr varsity exams, says UGC panel

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

A University Grants Commission (UGC) panel has recommended that final year exams in universities and colleges across India be cancelled in light of the Covid-19 pandemic.

Students can be evaluated on the basis of their performances in previous semester exams as well as the internals, the panel told the Union Human Resource Development Ministry on Wednesday.

The panel, led by Haryana University vice-chancellor R C Kuhad, said exams for the final semester, due in July as per the revised academic calendar, can also not be held as the Covid-19 pandemic continues to pose a threat.

So, what if students are unhappy with the results based on their previous performances? The panel suggested that they can be given a chance to improve their scores by taking the exams later on, once the pandemic threat subsides.

The University Grants Commission is expected to release a comprehensive guideline for institutions of higher education this week.

'Will refund all rail tickets till mid-Aug'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Indian Railways has announced the cancellation of all tickets, booked on or before April 14, on regular trains.

"It has been decided that all train tickets booked on or prior to April 14 for regular time-tabled trains should be cancelled and full refunds generated," the national transporter said in an order issued on June 22.

Railway reservation rules permit passengers to book tickets up to 120 days in advance for all classes and trains under advance reservation period.

With the new order, passengers who have booked tickets till mid-August will now have their tickets automatically cancelled and will get the refunds for the booked tickets. For PRS counter tickets, passengers can apply for refunds within six months from the date of journey

Earlier on May 14, the Railways had cancelled all regular train tickets booked for travel till June 30 and decided on full refunds.

Currently, the national transporter operates 15 pairs of Special AC trains and 200 time-tabled trains from May 20 and June 1. It has also been operating Shramik Special trains from May 1 to transport the stranded migrant workers, students, pilgrims and tourists. Since then, the Railway has operated over 4,450 Shramik Special trains to ferry over 60 lakh people.

700 km chase for 'Ring of Fire'

Swapnil Rastogi and Pushkar Pathak drove for 12 hours to reach Kurukshetra in Haryana to watch the 'Ring of Fire' with maximum clarity during the recent solar eclipse. The duo was joined by another friend from Farrukhabad. Swapnil and Pushkar learnt from NASA's website that Kurukshetra is one of the few places in India from where the phenomenon would be visible with maximum clarity. The duo dedicated their effort as a tribute to actor Sushant Singh Rajput.

LUCKNOW DIARY

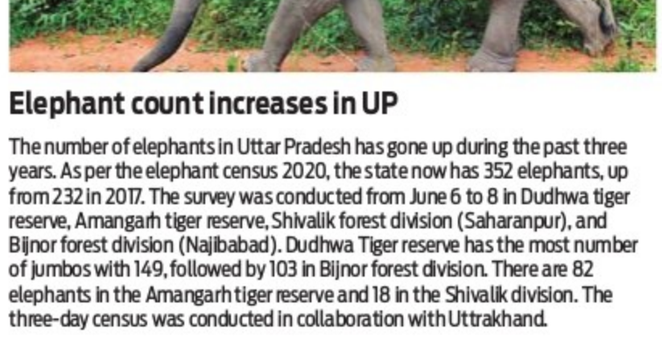
Monsoon cheer is here again

The monsoon is expected to arrive in Lucknow by this weekend. After a weeklong date with Fatehpur-Bahraich districts, the monsoon inched towards the Uttar Pradesh capital but stopped short of entering the city at Barabanki. However, the onset became imminent with some scanty pre-monsoonal showers spread across the city. Weathermen claimed that the currents over north Uttar Pradesh have moved more rapidly, covering areas bordering Nepal till Rudraprayag in Uttarakhand. At the same time, the monsoon currents over central and southern parts of the state are comparatively slow thus prolonging the wait for nearly half the state, including Bundelkhand, Awadh, and western Uttar Pradesh for first monsoon showers.

Virtual darshans, aartis mark Rath Yatra this year

Lord Jagannath's Rath Yatra remained a subdued affair this year in the City of Nawabs due to the coronavirus pandemic. For the first time in its history, the chariot festival of the Lord and his siblings began in the absence of devotees and without any huge processions. On Tuesday morning, priests and some members from the temple management gathered to perform the 'Maha Aarti'. Several temples aired these aartis live on Facebook and other social media. Devotees joined in substantial numbers to watch these 'virtual aartis'.



Elephant count increases in UP

The number of elephants in Uttar Pradesh has gone up during the past three years. As per the elephant census 2020, the state now has 352 elephants, up from 232 in 2017. The survey was conducted from June 6 to 8 in Dudhwa tiger reserve, Amangarh tiger reserve, Shivalik forest division (Saharanpur), and Bijnor forest division (Najibabad). Dudhwa Tiger reserve has the most number of jumbos with 149, followed by 103 in Bijnor forest division. There are 82 elephants in the Amangarh tiger reserve and 18 in the Shivalik division. The three-day census was conducted in collaboration with Uttrakhand.

24-YEAR-OLD BEATS TRUMP'S PICK FOR HOUSE GOP PRIMARY

LOUISVILLE

VOTERS rebuffed President Donald Trump and nominated two Republicans he opposed to House seats from North Carolina and Kentucky on Tuesday. Calls in higher-profile races in Kentucky and New York faced days of delay as swamped officials count mountains of mail-in ballots.

In western North Carolina, GOP voters picked 24-year-old investor Madison Cawthorn, who uses a wheelchair following an accident, over Trump-backed real estate agent Lynda Bennett. The runoff was for the seat vacated by GOP Rep. Mark Meadows, who resigned to become Trump's chief of staff and joined his new boss in backing Bennett.

Kentucky Republican Rep. Thomas Massie, a libertarian-minded maverick who often clashes with GOP leaders, was renominated for a sixth House term. Trump savaged Massie in March as a "disaster for America" who should be ejected from the party after he forced lawmakers to return to Washington during a pandemic to vote on a huge economic relief package.

Cawthorn, who will meet the constitutionally mandated minimum age of 25 when the next Congress convenes, has said he's a Trump supporter, and Massie is strongly conservative. Still, their victories were an embarrassment to a president whose own reelection campaign has teetered recently. AP

DON'S BROTHER SEEKS TO BLOCK NIECE MARY TRUMP'S BOOK

WASHINGTON: One of Donald Trump's brothers requested a restraining order to block publication of a potentially explosive book written by the US president's niece, NYT reported on Tuesday. Mary Trump will release her memoir Too Much and Never Enough: How My Family Created the World's Most Dangerous Man, on July 28, according to publishing house Simon & Schuster. Robert S Trump, the President's younger brother, asked a court in the New York borough of Queens to block its publication, alleging that Mary was violating a nondisclosure agreement related to the settlement of the estate of Fred Trump, Donald Trump's father. AFP

PROTESTERS TEAR DOWN STATUES IN WISCONSIN AND PUNCH SENATOR

MADISON: Crowds outside the Wisconsin State Capitol tore down two statues and attacked a state senator amid protests following the arrest of a Black man who shouted at restaurant customers through a megaphone while carrying a baseball bat. Video released by the Madison Police Department shows the man talking through the megaphone Tuesday while walking around the restaurant's outdoor patio. Late on Tuesday in Madison, Democratic state Senator Tim Carpenter was assaulted after taking a photo of protesters, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported. AP

Covid toll nears half million as cases surge in Americas

34,700 infections reported in US on Tuesday, highest in nearly 2 months

WASHINGTON

CORONAVIRUS cases are surging across large parts of the US and in Latin America, according to experts and figures, highlighting how far the world remains from stopping the pandemic as the global death toll neared half a million on Wednesday.

The World Trade Organization already warned on Tuesday that the outlook for the world economy over the next two years remains "highly uncertain", and that global trade is expected to see a huge coronavirus-driven plunge in the second quarter.

The number of deaths worldwide from the outbreak has surged past 4,77,000, a doubling of the toll in less than two months, according to an AFP tally on Wednesday.

China, where the virus was first detected in the city of Wuhan in December, said a new outbreak that has infected 256 people in Beijing since early June is "under control", but fears remain over the risk of community transmission.

Europe remains the worst-hit region with over 1,94,000 dead from more than 2.5 million cases. The continent has been loosening travel restrictions following a brutal few months when it was the epicentre of the pandemic.

World's worst hotspot

Latin America has been one of the world's worst hotspots for weeks, and the number of deaths there and in the Caribbean surpassed 1,00,000, according to an AFP tally.

Brazil, where President Jair Bolsonaro has flouted containment measures and described the virus as a "little flu", is officially the worst-hit country after the United States. More than 52,000 people are confirmed to have died of the virus in Brazil, as a federal judge ordered Bolsonaro to wear a face mask in public.

US states break virus records

Coronavirus hospitalisations and caseloads hit new highs in over a half-dozen states as signs of the virus' resurgence mounted, with newly confirmed infections nationwide back near their peak level of two months ago. After trending downward for six weeks, the US caseload has been growing again for over a week, particularly in the South and West.

Some 34,700 new cases were reported nationwide Tuesday, according to the count kept by Johns Hopkins University. The number was higher than any other day except April 9 and the record-setting date of April 24, when 36,400 cases were logged.

Florida marked 5,508 new infections on Tuesday, bringing its total to more than 109,000 confirmed cases and 3,281 deaths.

Governor Ron DeSantis said the state was experiencing "a real explosion in new cases among our younger demographics," and a spike in hospitalisations.

Some officials — including the Texas governor — who loo0sened restrictions on business, dining, public gatherings and tourism, are now urging residents to again stay home. AFP/AP

US cases reach highest level in two months

WASHINGTON: New coronavirus cases in the US have surged to their highest level in two months and are now back to where they were at the peak of the outbreak. The US on Tuesday reported 34,700 new cases of the virus, according to a tally compiled by Johns Hopkins University that was published on Wednesday. There have been only two previous days that the US has reported more cases: April 9 and April 24, when a record 36,400 cases were logged AP

Hindalco: Given HNDL's low-cost integrated aluminum operation in India, we believe it is well placed to withstand the impact of low LME. With ~75% EBITDA contribution now coming from non-LME business (Novelis + Aleris), we see relatively higher stability in earnings. Long-dated debt maturity profile and ample liquidity in hand should aid HNDL tide over the crisis.

Indian Oil posts mammoth loss as crude prices plunge

Consolidated net loss for the fourth quarter of FY20 was ₹8,656.5 cr

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

STATE-RUN oil refining and marketing giant Indian Oil Corporation Ltd (IOCL) Wednesday disclosed a consolidated net loss of ₹8,565.54 crore for the last quarter of financial year 2019-20 (Q4FY20). It had reported a consolidated profit of ₹6,003.96 crore in the corresponding quarter of the previous year.

According to financial details filed with the stock exchanges, the primary contributor for the loss was a large ₹11,304.64 crore inventory loss arising from the sharp fall in price of crude oil. Other large losses included those arising from associates and joint ventures, which stood at ₹6,547.34 crore, and a ₹4,145.53 crore foreign exchange loss due to sharp currency fluctuations.

Oil companies take inventory losses when crude oil prices fall before this stock of crude is processed and sold on the market. Since retail prices are benchmarked to high-frequency raw material prices, oil firms take inventory losses when crude dives. Rising oil similarly result in inventory gains.

Indian Oil's financial statements note that while the inventory loss during Q4FY20 had come up to ₹6,855.35 crore, the unprecedented lockdown and demand destruction since March 25 had led it to consider a longer timeframe to calculate the net realisable value (NRV) of its crude oil stock. "... as a one-time measure, a longer time period is considered for better estimation of NRV... As a result of considering a longer time period, the write down in valuation of inventories increased to ₹11,304.64 crore," it said in a note. This loss has been treated as an exceptional loss on the balance sheet due to its "nature and size", it added.

Meanwhile, total consolidated income from operations for the quarter fell by 3.11 per cent to ₹1.43 lakh crore from ₹1.48 lakh crore in the fourth quarter of the previous year, while total expenses increased by 7.65 per cent to ₹1.5 lakh crore from ₹1.39 lakh crore the previous year. For the whole financial year 2019-20, the company recorded a net consolidated loss of ₹1,876.32 crore against a net profit of ₹17,273.85 crore the previous year.

The sharp currency fluctuations resulting from the chaos caused by the Covid-19 pandemic also saw the oil refiner take a much larger forex loss during the financial year.

PRICEY FUEL TO DEPRESS DEMAND FOR ENTRY-LEVEL DIESEL CARS

EXPRESS expressions — FEAR NONE. FAVOUR NONE

WITH retail diesel prices turning costlier than petrol for the first time in history in places like Delhi, India's top automobile manufacturers believe that demand for diesel models in the small, entry-level segment is likely to contract. The observations were made during a panel discussion organised as part of The New Indian Express' Expressions: a series of live web casts with people who matter.

Wednesday's session on the Future of the Auto Sector saw the participation of Martin Schwenk, MD & CEO, Mercedes-Benz India; Shashank Srivastava, Sales and Marketing Head, Maruti Suzuki; and Puneet Anand, Group Head (Corporate Affairs), Hyundai Motor India. The session was moderated by Prabhu Chawla, Editorial Director, TNIE, and author and senior journalist Kaveree Bamzai.

Diesel has been a popular choice for many customers seeking SUVs and larger cars that are "fun to drive", as noted by Anand.

But, the consensus among the panelists was that demand for small diesel models will surely see a contraction. Among key reasons for this trend is the steady rise in retail diesel rates and a high price gap between BS-VI diesel and petrol models, even though diesel engines are more fuel efficient currently.

"Going forward, I don't see the economic logic for anybody to buy a small diesel car... when the BS-VI diesel model is a lakh-and-a-half rupees more than the petrol model. You would have to drive two-and-a-half lakh kilometers to recover the extra costs even if you assume an additional 20% fuel efficiency," noted Srivastava.

Schwenk concurred, but pointed out that there was a "strong customer base who like the characteristics of a diesel engine, especially in SUVs". "Of course, if petrol prices are cheaper, you would see more customers in price sensitive segments asking for petrol. But, I wouldn't see a big swing," he added.

For an already battered sector which has seen sales steadily falling since before the pandemic, the Covid-19 lockdown has wiped out nearly three months worth of business. But, with demand starting to return in June, overall performance will depend on how quickly the general economy recovers, they said. "We are looking at a positive scenario, wherein, if we arrest the spread of the pandemic, we'll see some demand resurgence in the festive season," Anand added.

A major part of reviving auto demand would also lie in restoring confidence in customers. "We have to look at how to make consumers more confident about coming to dealerships..," noted Srivastava, adding that going digital could be an option. "The consumers have indicated that they want more digital interfaces and we are accelerating that process," he said.

Anand agreed. "Customers expect more digital support from the manufacturers now, and these are measures which all manufacturers have already started to take... this can also really reduce the costs of operations where dealerships are concerned."

Aftersales service is also taking on substantial importance at a time when costs are rising and incomes are falling. Schwenk noted that keeping the total cost of ownership down is a key strategy to deal with the impact of the pandemic. This was being done in two ways, he pointed out: "On the one hand are service packages. On the other, it's based on improving the efficiency in workshops, which enables the dealers to offer better prices."

After sales service is crucial for customers. As luxury manufacturers, we need to be where the customers are. Keeping total cost of ownership down is definitely one of our strategies...

Martin Schwenk

I don't see the economic logic for anybody to buy a small diesel car. Why would anybody buy a diesel car when the BS-VI diesel model is a lakh-and-a-half rupees more than the petrol model?

Shashank Srivastava

India will be among the fastest to spring back, because of the resilience in our rural areas and our population. Also because cars are now becoming more of a necessity for all

INDIA CEMENTS

Revival is likely when Covid-19 is under control

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Chennai

INDIA Cements on Wednesday said that it expects the economy, driven by high domestic consumption and a strong rural base, to bounce back once the Covid-19 pandemic is brought under control.

Company Managing Director and noted industrialist N Srinivasan told reporters here that the covid factor has resulted in the cement industry seeing a 25 per cent decline in March compared to last year, while capacity utilisation for the sector, as well as the company, was below normal levels. The Chennai-headquartered company commenced operations in April following the partial lifting of the nationwide Covid-19 led lockdown.

However, with the re-introduction of lock-down in certain parts of the state due to the rising COVID-19 cases, it was difficult to predict economic growth in the coming two quarters, he said. "Given India's economy driven by high domestic consumption and a strong rural base, the company expects the economy would bounce back once the pandemic situation is under control," he said.

India Cements Wednesday declared the financial results for the fourth quarter ending March 31, 2020 with a consolidated net loss at ₹11.76 crore against net profit of ₹32.57 crore during the same quarter of the previous year.

E-tailers ready to comply, but seek clarity on 'origin of items' labelling

SESA SEN @New Delhi

AFTER Wednesday's meeting with the Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade (DPIIT), the e-commerce industry have agreed to display the 'country of origin' on each product sold through their platforms, but have sought a few weeks' time to comply with the proposal.

"We have told them clearly that we are not banning sale of any product. But, consumers should have the choice to know the place of origin of the items they are buying. While all the players said they will be able to make the technology-related changes for products being listed in the future, changes for the existing product line up it may take more time," said a commerce ministry official. It was also made clear by the government that the responsibility for providing country of origin-related information lay with the seller and not the platform.

Atleast 15 companies including Amazon, Flipkart, Paytm Mall, ShopClues and JioMart attended the virtual meeting that with the DPIIT headed by joint secretary Ravinder.

Company executives, who attended the meeting also told this publication that they have verbally agreed to check with sellers on the issue of displaying the country of origin next to their products. However, authenticity of the information remains a challenge, they said. Additionally, there isn't much clarity on what the country of origin for products should be for the products which are manufactured in India, but their raw materials are procured from other countries.

"We are fully committed to promote India made products and the manufacturing sector in the country. We have already initiated discussions with our sellers, merchant partners on the next steps to drive this initiative further," a Paytm Mall spokesperson said. The moves comes in the wake of the border stand-off between India and China that has sparked a campaign to boycott Chinese products.

Domestic traders' body the Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) had raised the demand of mandatory mentioning of "country of origin' on products sold by the private e-commerce companies with Union Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal on June 15.

CCI approves Facebook's stake in Jio Platforms

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

THE Competition Commission of India (CCI) Wednesday approved Facebook's proposed acquisition of a 9.99 percent stake in Reliance Industries' digital arm Jio Platforms. According to regulatory filings, Facebook will acquire the stake through its wholly-owned subsidiary Jaadhu Holdings LLC.

In a tweet, the CCI said it has approved "acquisition of 9.99 per cent stake in Jio Platforms by Jaadhu Holdings LLC". Jaadhu is a newly-incorporated company formed in March 2020 under the laws of the State of Delaware, US. It is not engaged in any business in India or anywhere in the world, the company had said in an earlier submission to the CCI.

Earlier in April, social media giant Facebook had announced its plan to purchase a stake in Jio Platforms for $5.7 billion (₹43,574 crore).

As for Reliance, the investment valued Jio Platforms Limited at a record ₹4.6 lakh crore.

India will bounce back in the range of 5-6% in FY22

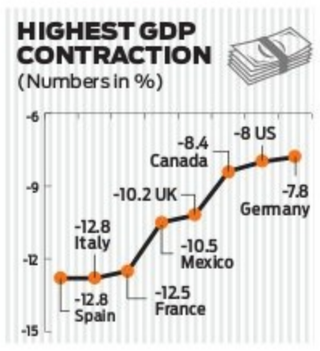
IF forced lockdowns choked economies' lungs, an uncertain recovery has left countries gasp for breath, literally landing them at the death's door. Two things await us -- a faster recovery and a potential second wave of infections. The world's fortunes and individuals' fate depends on which one reaches us first and survives longer than the other.

Until three months ago, India was one of the only two emerging economies with a potential to turn in positive growth. Now, that job is left to one country — China. Having reopened its economy in April, it's expected to punch in positive growth of 1% this fiscal and 8.2% next.

In 2020, barring China, all other countries, for the first time, will witness negative growth, as per the IMF. It has projected that India will recover to 5-6% in FY22, well below its potential, while global growth will touch 5.4% , barely exceeding the 2019 level.

Overall, this would leave 2021 GDP some 6.5% lower than in the pre-Covid-19 projections of January 2020.



Meanwhile, IMF estimates countries have committed $10 trillion (excluding monetary measures) and so global public debt is expected to reach an all-time high, exceeding 101 per cent of GDP in 2020-2021.

As for income inequality, IMF projections imply a particularly acute negative impact on economies. The fraction of the world's population living in extreme poverty — on less than ₹144 a day — fell below ₹10 in recent years from over 35% in 1990. Now, this is at risk as most developing economies are likely to witness negative per capita income growth in 2020.

VISA BAN

Homebound techies may give Indian start-up ecosystem a fresh impetus

BISMAH MALIK @Bengaluru

TENS of thousands of techies who are headed home, as a result of the US government banning the various non-immigration visas including the H-1B, may play a crucial role, strengthening the Indian start-up ecosystem. Analysts say, these professionals could join the existing new age companies or may even look at launching their own start-up with a clear focus on sustainability.

More than 70 per cent of the fresh H-1B visa applications (85,000) and those awaiting renewals (two lakh) are Indians and would have to wait at least till this year-end for employment opportunities in the US. Given this scenario, a majority of these technology professionals are expected to head back to India, and there is also a likelihood that the companies which had employed them could place them outside the US, industry analysts told this publication.

Analysts also opine that the situation may be strikingly similar to the previous decade where a lot of engineers in the Bay area ended up founding their own ventures in the US and elsewhere. Take the case of Snapdeal, CEO and Co- Founder Kunal Bahl. A business graduate from University of Pennsylvania, Bahl was denied an H-1B visa in 2007 and hence he decided to move back to his country of origin - India - where he founded India's third largest e-commerce company, Snapdeal which has Amazon and Walmart-backed Flipkart as its rivals. Bahl missed out working for Microsoft back then and had this message to convey to those techies whose American dream lied shattered due to H-1B visa ban. "India is the land of big opportunities. I didn't know this 13 years ago when my H-1B visa was rejected, but haven't regretted a moment since," Bahl tweeted.

Hemant Mohapatra, partner at LightSpeed India, who had a flourishing 14 year-old career in the US while working for companies like Google, said that all it takes is the right intention and patience to make it big in the start-up industry. "These are difficult times for the start-up founders, but the kind of opportunities in India are unmatchable," Mohapatra said, adding he has already prepared a to-do list for the US returnees on how they could restart their career.

According to Pareekh Jain, founder and lead analyst, EIIRTRend and Pareekh Consulting, many of the US returnees could look at launching start-ups. "For now, sustainability and resource crunch could pose a problem as the community is facing the heat of Chinese money has stopped coming in. The pandemic situation has made their survival difficult. However there will be an impetus to this ecosystem as huge tech talent flows in from the US."

Positive on Tuesday, Hafeez tests negative

Mohammad Hafeez has tested negative for Covid-19, a day after PCB found him positive for the virus ahead of the team's tour of England. Hafeez and Wahab Riaz were among the 10 Pakistan players, who tested positive on Tuesday. The team is due to leave for England on Sunday.

'Closed-door cricket equally good product'

West Indies board CEO Johnny Grave talks to Swaroop Swaminathan on England tour, bio-secure model and how the game can go on in current times

EXPRESS SPECIAL

AT Old Trafford in Manchester, a significant cricketing event took place on Tuesday. The touring West Indies contingent divided themselves into two teams to play a warm-up match ahead of the Test series against England next month. After more than three months of inactivity, the match was the first time an international cricket team took to a ground.

It wasn't a straight forward process. It involved more than a month of conversations and medical advice. Ahead of what is likely to be a historic series, this daily spoke to Johnny Grave, the CEO of Cricket West Indies, on how the board planned the trip, T20 World Cup and the sport's short term future. Excerpts:

What were your initial thoughts about the series?

The first conversations were on preparation time and when was the earliest ECB could consider hosting us. We made it clear to ECB that we would only go if the financial terms were the same, we would be paid for the commercial flight to the UK, them picking up the match fees of our players and we would only go if it was safe.

That would require our medical practitioners giving us the all clear. Then we went into detailed discussions about protocols, medical plans and how the ECB could host us in a bio-secure environment.

When did you take the proposal to the players and what were the challenges?

We had a meeting with the players for them to understand the discussions that we were starting to have, which was maybe it's safe to go to England to play in a bio-secure environment. We wanted to ensure that the players understood what that meant... Flying on a private jet to UK, staying at a cricket ground with an attached hotel where no one would be able to enter or exit without a negative test and that they would be tested before going and upon arrival. It was information sharing. We did not take the final proposal to them till like 10 days before they were due to travel.

Was it hard to go from a region not severely affected to one that was?

By the time we got to say to the players about the final plan, medical practitioners were saying you would be as safe in England as you would be in the Caribbean. At the time of that conversation on June 1, the UK situation was improving. Pretty much all medical practitioners sort of acknowledged and accepted that the peak had hit UK around the first of April. The improving situation and our head coach Phil Simmons being there... contributed towards a different environment when the players had to make that decision.

How hard was it to get the players to commit to the trip?

We didn't try to persuade them. We hosted a call between Nick Pearce (chief medical officer of ECB) and our medical practitioners where they talked about plans. Then, our head of operations, Roland Holder, talked through the logistics (testing, flying to Antigua, getting across the Atlantic to Manchester and getting their way to the stadium in Old Trafford).

Then, Roger Harper, our lead selector, took over. He got in touch with players for the Test team including the reserves and the players could either give him a 'yes', 'no' or sleep on it for 24 hours. Of the 25, there was one immediate 'no' (Darren Bravo), two 'nos' the next day (Shimron Hetmyer, Keemo Paul). Six said 'yes' after 24 hours. The rest said 'okay' straight away.

From an international cricket perspective, how important is this tour going to be?

Very. Everyone relies on revenues generated by men's international cricket. Being able to demonstrate to TV companies that we can get live sport back on safely I think will be... really important. We also need to demonstrate that behind closed doors, cricket as a product is almost as good as the real thing with fans. Therefore, the eyes of the world, from a cricket operation and medical point of view, will be on us.

Indian unlikely for ICC chairman post

ATREYO MUKHOPADHYAY @Chennai

BARRING a surprise, there will be no Indian contender for the ICC chairman's post this term. The ICC Board will have a virtual meeting on Thursday. Finalising the nomination process to elect the new chairman, T20 World Cup and administrative matters are on agenda.

With the ICC Board saying after its June 10 meeting that a decision on staging the World Cup in Australia in October-November will be announced in July, the election process assumes importance in Thursday's discussions. The Board is likely to finalise the last date of filing nominations and the election process. Shashank Manohar's successor was supposed to be elected ahead of the July 24-27 Annual Conference in Cape Town. Under changed circumstances, officials have to decide if the process can be completed online or wait until the situation becomes normal.

England's Colin Graves remains the frontrunner to become chairman. There were talks that BCCI president Sourav Ganguly would be a contestant, but that chance appears slim. Board officials have not discussed the possibility with member units. Although there is no rule, usually before nominating someone for an ICC post, the BCCI shares the news with the member associations.

Moreover, the BCCI also thinks other ICC members will not accept another Indian as chairman right after Manohar. "I think we have to skip this term before we can have the next Indian ICC chairman. Unless there is great understanding between all the boards, one Indian followed immediately by another is unlikely. Good for BCCI in a way. The current officials are new. They will be wiser by the time the ICC elects its next chairman," said a former BCCI office-bearer.

A candidate has to have the experience of attending a Board meeting and be nominated by a former or present Board member. Ganguly, former BCCI presidents N Srinivasan and Anurag Thakur fulfil this. Also, one can't hold any position in any board after becoming ICC chairman. Srinivasan and Thakur are unlikely to throw their hat in the ring due to other commitments.

Senior state cricketers involved in yoga classes

BENGALURU: Well-known state cricketers, including R Samarth, Dega Nischal, Karun Nair and several other senior players attended a yoga class at the M Chinnaswamy Stadium on Wednesday. The classes, which lasted for approximately 45 minutes or so was conducted by a yoga instructor, Manasa Rao, said one of the players who attended the session. It also reflects how players are gradually preparing for the upcoming season, though the domestic calendar is yet to be announced. However, the KSCA league is tentatively scheduled for a July start.

Have faith & be positive, Vijay's advice

ASHOK VENUGOPAL @Chennai

VIJAY Amritraj welcomes the news that some of the Indian tennis players were back in training when lockdown rules were relaxed in various places. According to him, returning to the court will have a positive impact, but he advises that it will be better if tournaments are held after some time. The likes of Prajnesh Gunneswaran, Sasikumar Mukund, Manish Suresh Kumar trained in Chennai after special permission, while Rohan Bopanna found time in Bengaluru.

"It is good to note that players have begun practice. It is important to come out and play and train after a long time. No matter how many hours you train at home, the joy of playing on a tennis court is different," said Vijay from USA.

"When you start practising again, you shed rust. It gives you hope that things will return to normal and prepares your mind."

Vijay, president of Tamil Nadu Tennis Association, feels it will be difficult to set a date for events in India. "Chennai is in the red zone and in various parts of the country, there are many cases every day. The situation is not conducive for tournaments. Resumption will depend on the government's advice," the 66-year old.

Novak Djokovic has tested positive for Covid-19, with a clutch of other players who participated in an exhibition event. "As said earlier, it is always a positive thing for a sportsman to come out and try to start playing. Djokovic was unlucky. But he is mentally tough and should emerge out of it successfully," opined Vijay.

Will the Djokovic experience have an impact on US Open? "Too early to say. We will get a clear idea when we get close to it. But the Djkovic experience is an eye opener."

Many Indian players are ruing the fact that there will be no qualifiers in US Open this year. This could deny them ranking points and money. "The situation has demanded such measures. But I am sure some of our players may still get to play, as we still don't who all will play."

Philippines braces for volcano evacuation

ABNORMAL CONDITION

MANILA: Philippine villagers near a restive volcano on a central island are bracing for possible evacuations that would require physical distancing because of the coronavirus pandemic, an official said Wednesday.

The Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology said it detected dozens of small earthquakes on the western flank of Kanlaon volcano, which emitted plumes of steam up to 300 metres in the air overnight. Kanlaon on Negros island is one of about two dozen active volcanoes in the Philippines.

Those signs, along with a slight bulging of Kanlaon's slope, 'indicate that hydrothermal or magmatic activity is occurring beneath the edifice,' the institute said.

It added that the volcano 'is at an abnormal condition and has entered a period of unrest.' Zeaphard Caelian, who heads the disaster response agency in Negros Occidental province, said authorities issued an initial alert in March after Kanlaon began showing signs of restiveness, which intensified last weekend.

More than 20,000 people in eight villages within 6 to 12 kilometers (4 to 7 miles) of Kanlaon would have to be evacuated if the volcano shows signs of an imminent eruption. Officials are identifying evacuation centers where physical distancing could to be observed to prevent the spread of the coronavirus, Caelian said.

The Philippines has reported more than 32,000 confirmed coronavirus infections, including 1,204 deaths.

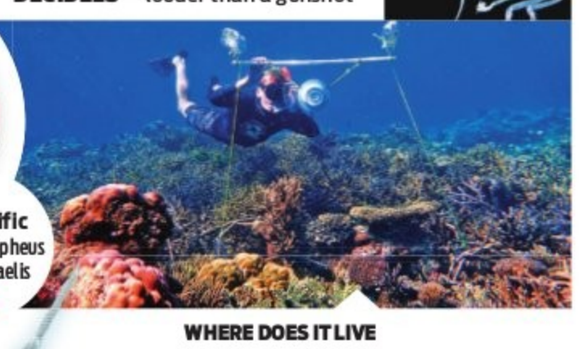
In the blink of an eye

The snapping shrimp – also known as the pistol shrimp – is notable for its massive claw. A recent study suggests that it has some of the fastest eyes on the planet. A look at the species..

Scientific name: Alpheus heterochaelis

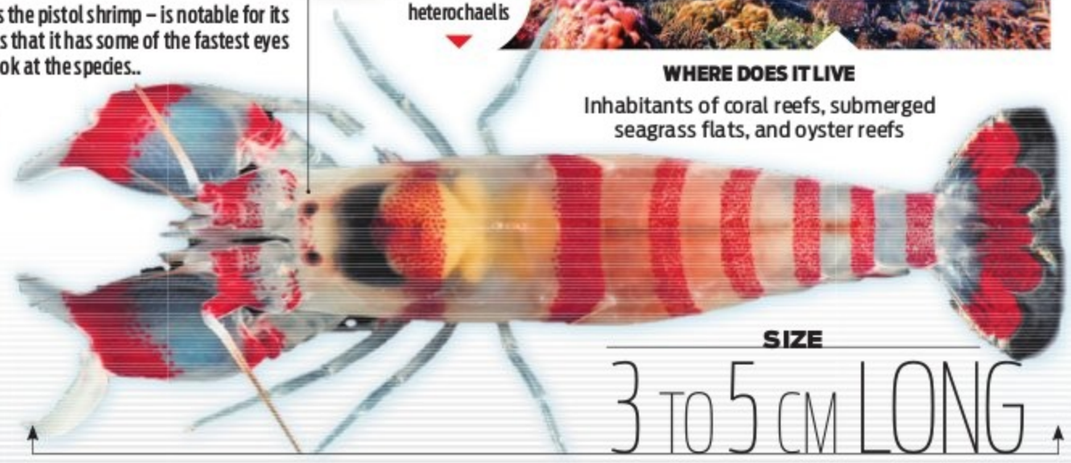


WHERE DOES IT LIVE

Inhabitants of coral reefs, submerged seagrass flats, and oyster reefs

WHY THE BUZZ

Though not much bigger than a wooden match stick, the snapping shrimps are already famous for their loud, quick closing claws, the sound of which stuns their prey and rivals in the water. Now, a group of researchers has discovered these marine crustaceans have the eyesight to match this speed.



SIZE

3 TO 5 CM LONG

NEW STUDY

1. Scientists stuck a thin conducting wire into the eye of a chilled, live shrimp and recorded electrical impulses from the eye in response to flickering light. The crustaceans refresh their view 160 times a second, according to the Biology Letters.
2. It is one of the highest refresh rates of any animal on Earth. Pigeons come close, being able to sample their field of view 143 times per second, whereas humans top out at a relatively measly 60 times a second.
3. The researchers reported that only some day-flying insects beat the snapping shrimp. As a result, what people and all other vertebrates see the objects as a blur, the pistol shrimp detects as discrete images moving across its field of vision.

ASSUMPTION

- Until a few years ago, most researchers thought snapping shrimp didn't see very well because they have a hard hood called a carapace that extends over their eyes. Although the hood seems transparent, with some coloration, it wasn't clear how well it transmitted light.
- But it appears to be no impediment to the shrimp detecting fast moving prey or even predators whipping by.
- This might be important because the shrimp tend to live in cloudy water, so they don't have much notice when another critter is approaching them.

Herd immunity threshold lower than thought

Just 43 per cent of population needs to be infected by coronavirus, as opposed to 60, to potentially achieve it

CONTAINING OUTBREAK

LONDON: Herd immunity to Covid-19, which happens when so many people in a community become immune to the disease that it stops spreading, could be achieved with fewer people being infected than previously estimated, according to a new study.

Scientists, including those from the University of Nottingham in the UK, noted that herd immunity develops when individuals contracting the disease build up natural immunity, and by people receiving a vaccine. They explained that when a large percentage of the population becomes immune to a disease, the spread of the disease slows down or stops and the chain of transmission is broken.

In the current study, published in the Science, the researchers devised a mathematical model categorising people into groups reflecting age and social activity level to determine the threshold of the population that needed to be immune for herd immunity to develop.

When they factored in differences in age and social activity in the model, they found that the herd immunity level reduced from 60 to 43 per cent. The 43 per cent figure, according to the scientists, should be interpreted as an illustration rather than an exact value, or even a best estimate.

By taking this new mathematical approach to estimating the level for herd immunity to be achieved we found it could potentially be reduced to 43 per cent and that this reduction is mainly due to activity level rather than age structure.

Study co-author Frank Ball

For Covid-19, they said herd immunity is often stated as around 60 per cent, a figure derived from the fraction of the population that must be vaccinated in advance of an epidemic to prevent a large outbreak. This figure assumes that each individual in the population is equally likely to be vaccinated, and hence immune, the scientists explained.

However, they said this is not the case if immunity arises as a result of disease spreading in a population consisting of people with many different behaviours.

"By taking this new mathematical approach to estimating the level for herd immunity to be achieved we found it could potentially be reduced to 43 per cent and that this reduction is mainly due to activity level rather than age structure," explained study co-author Frank Ball from the University of Nottingham.

According to the scientists, the more socially active individuals are, the more likely they are to get infected, than the less socially active ones — and they are also more likely to infect people if they become infected.

The researchers said the herd immunity level is lower when immunity is caused by disease spreading than when immunity comes from vaccination.

They believe that the findings have potential consequences for the release of lockdown measures across the world, and suggested that individual variation is an important feature to include in models that guide policy.

Virus relapse witnessed in patients with comorbidities

TEST AGAIN

BEIJING: Coexisting medical conditions like heart disease and hypertension may lead to fully recovered Covid-19 patients testing positive for the viral infection again, according to a study which says most such patients with re-positive outcomes "tended to return negative eventually."

Researchers from Huazhong University of Science and Technology in China assessed data on 938 Covid-19 patients from the country's Wuhan Union Hospital. They obtained information about residual symptoms in these patients, and the results of follow up tests for viral genetic material in their body after they were discharged.

In the study, which is yet to be published, the scientists evaluated the relationship of clinical characteristics, and reappeared positive viral RNA test results in the patients over a follow-up period of at least 44 days. According to the findings, published in the preprint repository medRxiv, a total of 58 (6.2 per cent) of the 938 patients had reappeared positive viral RNA test results, while 880 remained negative.

The scientists found a link between co-morbid conditions among patients over 50 years of age, and their chances of testing positive again during the follow-up period. "Among patients over the age of 50, the factors we found to be associated with re-positive results were coronary artery disease, and hypertension," they wrote in the study.

The scientists said 54 (93.1 per cent) of the re-positive (RP) patients turned negative again.

Chemo may not increase Covid risk

SIGH OF RELIEF

NEW YORK: Advanced cancer, and chemotherapy treatment may not increase the risk of developing severe Covid-19, according to a study which assessed more than 400 patients hospitalised with novel coronavirus infection.

The research, published in the Nature Medicine, noted that 40 per cent of 423 patients with cancer at a New York City cancer centre diagnosed with Covid-19 were hospitalised. According to researchers, including Mini Kamboj from Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in the US, 20 per cent of the patients developed severe respiratory illness and 12 per cent died within 30 days. While chemotherapy was not found to be an aggravating factor, they said patients treated with checkpoint inhibitor immunotherapy were more likely to be hospitalised with respiratory complications.

MODERN APPROACH

NEW YORK: As part of the 6th International Yoga Day commemorations, the world's first yoga university outside India has been launched in Los Angeles, offering programmes that combine scientific principles and modern research approaches to yoga.

The Vivekananda Yoga University (VaYU) was jointly launched on Tuesday by Minister of State for External Affairs V Muraleedharan and Chairperson of the Standing Committee on External Affairs PP Chaudhary during a virtual event in New York.

The university will offer online master's program in yoga.

"The G9 now joins the portfolio as the first dual QHD gaming monitor with 1000R curvature," said Hyesung Ha, senior vice-president of Visual Display Business at Samsung Electronics.

Discrepancy in testing

WOMEN DEPRIORITISED

An international aid group says coronavirus data in some countries show a sharp discrepancy between cases in men and women amid concerns that women lack proper access to testing and health care. The International Rescue Committee highlights several socially conservative countries including Somalia and Afghanistan, where data this week shows 72 per cent of cases are male and 28 per cent are female. In Yemen, 75 per cent of cases are male and in Pakistan and Chad, it's 74 per cent . The global breakdown is roughly 50 per cent. Testing in many of these countries remains low because of a shortage of materials.

Arctic warms much faster, rapid meltdown, wildfires

GLOBAL WARMING

MOSCOW: The Arctic is feverish and on fire — at least parts of it are. And that's got scientists worried about what it means for the rest of the world.

The thermometer hit a likely record of 38 degrees Celsius in the Russian Arctic town of Verkhoyansk on Saturday, a temperature that would be a fever for a person — but this is Siberia, known for being frozen. The World Meteorological Organisation said Tuesday that it's looking to verify the temperature reading, which would be unprecedented for the region north of the Arctic Circle.

"The Arctic is figuratively and literally on fire — it's warming much faster than we thought it would in response to rising levels of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, and this warming is leading to a rapid meltdown and increase in wildfires," University of Michigan environmental school dean Jonathan Overpeck, a climate scientist, said in an email. "The record warming in Siberia is a warning sign of major proportions," Overpeck wrote.

Much of Siberia had high temperatures this year that were beyond unseasonably warm. From January through May, the average temperature in north-central Siberia has been about 8 degrees Celsius above average, according to the climate science non-profit Berkeley Earth. "That's much, much warmer than it's ever been over that region in that period of time," Berkeley Earth climate scientist Zeke Hausfather said.

Russia's Arctic regions are among the fastest warming areas in the world

Siberia is in the Guinness Book of World Records for its extreme temperatures. It's a place where the thermometer has swung 106 degrees Celsius, from a low of minus 68 degrees Celsius to now 38 degrees.

For residents of the Sakha Republic in the Russian Arctic, a heat wave is not necessarily a bad thing. Vasilisa Ivanova spent every day this week with her family swimming and sunbathing. "We spend the entire day on the shore of the Lena River," said Ivanova, who lives in the village of Zhigansk, 270 miles from where the heat record was set.

Getting the posture right is important so we have to hand-hold the little ones. So I request the parents to be around to help the children during the online class

—Priyanka Mohan, Yakshagana artiste

VINTAGE ART, NEW DIRECTION

Yakshagana veterans are turning towards new-age means to keep the ancient art form of Karnataka alive in these times; some are getting responses from USA, UAE for online classes

Monika Monalisa

It was nothing less than euphoria for Srinivas Sasthan to reach out to his students on Zoom after two months of no classes. The 62-year-old Yakshagana veteran, like other gurus today, is foraying into the new-age digital medium to keep the ancient dance form alive in these pandemic-ridden times.

Sasthan, who takes classes at Karnataka Kala Darshini, JP Nagar, started virtual tutorials last month so that his students stay in touch with the syllabus. The weekly classes, besides being a safer alternative, also helped him get in touch with students who had left the dance practice. The Yakshagana guru, who has 32 years experience and is also a member of Karnataka Yakshagana Academy, says one has to brush up their skills even if there are no performances in the near future.

Following a similar mindset is Prasad Cherkady. The veteran with 18 years stage experience believes new-age technology can be used well to spread the ancient knowledge of Yakshagana. During pre-covid times, Cherkady took classes at KH Kala Soudha, VV Puram, Konakunte and RT Nagar. But come July, he will start his new batch of online classes. "I have been getting enquiries from people from USA and UAE. The advantage here is that I'm not physically bound to a place for my classes," says Cherkady, who is glad to see people's growing interest in Karnataka's traditional art form. "Yakshagana is quite popular in coastal Karnataka but not so much in cities. But that's changing now," says 32-year old Cherkady, who hails from Udupi.

Yakshagana veteran Srinivas Sasthan takes online classes during the weekdays

The online classes, however, come with their own set of challenges. Priyanka Mohan, who has been practising Yakshgana for 20 years, says she still misses the four walls of a classroom. "There are so many techniques involved in teaching a dance form. Especially for children, who are beginners," says Mohan, who teaches at institute Yakshadegula, Basavanagudi. She explains, "Getting the posture right is important so we have to literally hand-hold the little ones. I miss that in my online classes. So for my younger students, I request the parents to be around to help them." But Mohan, who is one of the few female Yakshgana performers in the state, also can't deny the benefits of the new normal. "Through technology, people are able to learn so much about this art form," she says.

Thirty two eminent personalities, one common cause – paying a musical tribute to the frontline warriors who have tirelessly worked amidst the pandemic. The music video, titled Hymn of Empathy, Love & Hope, which was released on June 21, features notable artistes like Shankar Mahadevan, Latha Rajinikanth, Salim Merchant, Boman Irani and Kalki Koechlin, besides prominent Bengalureans like Danish Sait, Yash and Kiran Mazumdar-Shaw.

Directed by Aloke Shetty and spearheaded by Oum Pradutt, the city-based founder and managing director of Phase 1 Events and Experiences, the song was composed by Bengaluru's very own Raghu Dixit with lyrics penned by Neeraj Rajawat Singh.

Speaking about the idea behind the video, Pradutt says it occurred to him during distributing food to the needy during the lockdown. "At that time, I realised how pathetic the conditions are, and that this suffering isn't limited just to India but stretches across the globe. Socially, politically and economically, we were back to zero. This made me think about raising funds by doing something creative with the help of artists," Pradutt says about the video, which also features Soha Ali Khan, Kriti Kharbanda and Shibhani Dandekar and Rehan Poncha.

Pradutt added that the video is a message from India to the world on empathy, love, hope, respect and happiness. "If you look at it, you will notice everyone doing a namaste, which is the new way of greeting due to social distancing. Even if it's for a second, each person in the video showcases a positive sign through their presence. We picked up stock footages of cities from across the world, such as Stockholm and Buenos Aires, and since we were in lockdown, it took us over two months," he says, stressing that his current focus is to bring delight to people. "We have always done something to impact people through our experiences. When we could do it physically, we did it. Now we look to do the same virtually," he says.

Airport to welcome cyclists on Sundays

Express Features

Here's some good news for cycling enthusiasts in the city. Bangalore International Airport Limited (BIAL) – operator of Kempegowda International Airport, Bengaluru (KIAB or BLR Airport) – has announced opening of the BLR Airport campus to cyclists every Sunday between 6am and 9.30am. This is in conjunction with the Bengaluru bicycle mayor Sathya Sankaran. Previously, cyclists were restricted at the airport campus due to safety concerns. But now that the road infrastructure has improved, BLR Airport is all set to welcome cyclists.

"We are pleased to play a part in promoting cycling in Bengaluru," said a BIAL spokesperson, adding that the decision reiterates their commitment to a greener future. Cyclists will be requested to follow safety guidelines during the time they spend at the airport. Sankaran explains how the cycling community in the city can look forward to this opportunity. "As cyclists, we are always on the lookout for places that are both safe and picturesque in which we can ride. It has been our long-standing desire to be able to ride at BLR Airport, with its paved roads and beautiful landscapes," he adds.

A dedicated cycle parking facility will be available near The Quad by BLR, where bikes will be monitored by BIAL's security systems.

Booking a new experience

Innovation is the key word at this point in time, especially in the hospitality industry, which has been significantly hit during the pandemic. The new normal calls for new ideas and strategies, and star hotels in the city are thinking out of the box by turning the crisis into an opportunity. Suites that were once booked with high net-worth individuals, expats and travellers, are being turned into private dining areas, and 'hotel offices'.

Ninety-nine guest rooms out of the 273 rooms at The Ritz-Carlton are now luxury dining areas after the introduction of '99 Pop-Up Restaurants'. "It is important to keep the ball rolling even if the pace is slower," says Amitabh Rai, general manager. "Here, we offer exclusivity and security as our guests dine in the comfort and privacy of a guest room. This is a blend of experiencing luxury dining with contact- free service, as you are catered to by a single butler and all the facilities are exclusive to you in the private dining room," he adds. The ₹3,000++ deal offers 13 menu options catering a range of cuisines, and receive an average of 11 reservations a day, which vary from a couple to requests for a table for four. "People come in to celebrate a special occasion or meet a buddy for a one-on-one catch up," Rai says, adding that for those who prefer the outdoors, the Starlit by the Pool allows guests to dine in cabanas.

Blending the colonial ambience and the new-age requirements of social distancing, the Taj West End has also started 'In-Suite Dining', where guests choose a suite, alongside a tailor-made menu. "The pandemic demands that businesses such as ours rethink and reinvent themselves," says Somnath Mukherjee, general manager of the hotel.

Leela Palace Bengaluru offers work from hotel packages ● Meghana Sastry

If co-working spaces was thought to be the next big thing, hotels offering 'Work from Hotel' concepts are likely be stiff competitors. To combat challenges of network, connectivity and privacy issues people face at home, some like The Leela Palace Bengaluru are offering a 'millennial' work from hotel package. "This will help travelling professionals, entrepreneurs and local young professionals in a way that caters to their need for efficiency," says Kunal Chauhan, general manager.

With most offices closed at present and physical meetings with clients being a challenge, Amaan Kidwai, GM of ITC Gardenia, finds corporates looking to work from a place that gives them a sense of safety, along with good internet connectivity and privacy. "We have a custom-made package that has relevant inclusions-- Wi-Fi access and boardroom usage," he says. The 'Day Use Offer Package', which begins at ₹4,499++ and is also offered at ITC Windsor and WelcomHotel, gives a 9am to 9pm stay and other deals.

THE JUNE BOOTID METEOR SHOWER

(JUNE 22 TO JUNE 27)

The June Bootid meteor shower will be active from June 22 to July 2, producing its peak rate of meteors around 27 June. Over this period, there will be a chance of seeing June Bootid meteors whenever the shower's radiant point — in the constellation Bootes — is above the horizon. With the number of visible meteors increasing the higher the radiant point is in the sky. The shower is likely produce its best displays in the hours around 9 pm, when its radiant point is highest in the sky. The shower is expected to reach peak activity at around 10 am on June 27, and so the best displays might be seen before the radiant sets on June 27.

Note: The visibility of a meteor shower depends on factors including geographic coordinates of observer and elevation, time of the day, city lights, pollution, the weather and the terrain.

'AUTO'MATED WATER

In Rajasthan's Churu district, one man's idea is now providing fresh water to its residents. Sujangarh-based autorickshaw driver Mohammed Aabad converted his vehicle into a moving water tank and named it 'Shudh Filter Paani' providing free, chilled drinking water to people. Aabad has installed a water tanker, cooler and 500-watt solar panels in his rickshaw. He also has a music system, fan and loudspeaker that runs on electricity generated from the solar panels. Every day, he spends ₹2,000 from his personal savings to purchase 2,000 litres of cold water from an RO plant. The auto has steel glasses and a tap. During lockdown, he drove this tank around till noon. He also spread awareness about the virus.

PARIVRTTA TRIKONASANA

(REVOLVED TRIANGLE POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'parivrtta' means 'revolve,' 'trikona' means 'triangle,' and 'asana' means 'posture'. This pose is a standing forward bend infused with the spinal twist. Traditionally, it is believed to activate the Svadisthana (spleen or sacral) chakra. By energising this chakra, the pose opens the practitioner to creativity, pleasure and feelings of self-worth and joy. It ignites passion, stokes the digestive fire, and can even help awaken Kundalini.

STEPS

- Start with Tadasana.
- Inhale and keep your legs 3-4 feet apart. Raise your arms in line with the shoulders, palms facing downward.
- Turn the right foot outwards 90 degree. Turn the left foot inwards 60 degree to the right.
- Exhale and turn the trunk to the right. Lean forward over the right leg. Place your left palm on the floor; inside or outside the right foot.
- Stretch the right hand upward. Maintain this final position. Turn the head upwards and gaze at the thumb of the right hand.
- Knees must be tight. Don't lift the toes of the right foot. The outer side of the left foot must remain on the floor firmly.
- Retain the pose from 30 seconds to a minute.
- Now lift the hand off the floor. Raise the body while reversing the twist.
- Relax for a few seconds and repeat from left side. Can do it 2-6 times.

BENEFITS

- Stretches and strengthens the muscles of the hamstring and thigh.
- Massages reproductive organs and pelvic region.
- Gives an intense stretch to the spine and enhances its flexibility. Strengthens spinal nerves.
- Removes the stiffness of neck and is beneficial in correcting the alignment of the shoulders.
- Directs the blood flow in the lower region of the spine improving its functioning.
- Revitalises abdominal organs hence helpful in getting rid of digestive problems and constipation.
- Helpful in getting rid of anxiety as it stimulates the whole functioning of the nervous system.

LIMITATIONS

- If you are new to yoga, keep the head in the neutral position instead of upward.
- In case of severe pain in the neck, back or shoulders, avoid this pose.
- If you have had a recent back or spine injury, avoid this pose.
- If you suffer from migraine, knee problems, vertigo, heart problem, cervical spondylitis, low blood pressure, breathing troubles, sleeping disorder, frequent headaches or insomnia, avoid this pose.

QUICK FIX

CAPSICUM CHUTNEY

INGREDIENTS
- Capsicum: 1, big (preferably green)
- Onion: 2, big ■ Tomato: 2
- Tamarind: Gooseberry size
- Mor milagai (sundried chillies): 5
- Garlic: 4 pods ■ Oil

METHOD
- Roughly chop onions, capsicum and tomatoes.
- Heat oil in a pan and add garlic and onions. When they start to turn brown, add tamarind, mor milagai and capsicum.
- After a few minutes, add tomatoes to the mixture and let it fry for ten minutes.
- Once ready, transfer it to a mixer jar and grind.
- The chutney tastes good even without tempering or extra salt. Best when served with rava dosa.

OF DELAYS & OTHER E-SHOPPING DILEMMAS

Once known for their quick and efficient functioning, e-retailers are now giving enough reasons for complaints to shoppers, with their slow customer care service and mess-ups in deliveries

● Muneef Khan

Delayed deliveries, limited options and lack of immediate grievance handling... consumers shopping on e-commerce websites are a dissatisfied bunch. Their biggest problem? The dip in consistency and quality of services provided after the pandemic outbreak.

Post the lockdown, Avinash Kumar began ordering groceries online on Big Basket. "What surprised me was that a friend who already had a monthly subscription was catered to on time, without disruptions, whereas I had to check for 2-3 days for the availability of a delivery slot," says Kumar.

Bengalureans cites various issues they are facing while shopping on e-commerce sites. For instance, graphic designer Arham Javed, whose Amazon order saw a delay in delivery due to the restrictions and limited delivery partners, recalls, "I received a notification about my order being delivered but I hadn't picked it up and no details of the individual who picked it up was mentioned. I called the helpline but it took a long while to get in touch with them but more importantly, they did not share the delivery executives number before making the delivery. Finally, the delivery partner got back and told me he dropped it off in the building's security room. Without informing me or the guard!." Mansi Mishra, on the other hand, had issues with the e-retailer at the point of browsing on the website itself. The designer was unable to purchase a smartphone although it was in stock. "Once I got through to the option of buying it, the site showed that it wasn't delivering to my area due to a reason they weren't sure about," says Mishra, who faced issues with other e-retailers as well. Sachin Banandur, a city-based musician, faced a similar issue while trying to purchase a mattress online via Wakefit.co. Unsure of the delivery period, he eventually decided to not go ahead with his order.

When CE reached out to them, Amazon, Flipkart and Big Basket declined to comment. Chaitanya Ramalingegowda, co-founder and director at Wakefit.co, however, asserted that while the company's manufacturing operations were affected during the lockdown, the customer service was available to address grievances. "Deliveries have been affected in red zones and pin codes that one has to pass through red zones to get to. But the transparency in communication has assuaged a lot of customer complaints," he told CE, admitting that there might have been a small rise in customer grievances. "The number of calls received during this period was the same as that received by us during Deepavali, which is peak sale time. This shows that there are more queries, due to delays in delivery," says Ramalingegowda, adding that while orders have come back to 80 per cent of pre-COVID era, the number of flawless orders – where customer do not need to contact the company – have reduced. "During pre-COVID times, 95 per cent of the orders were flawless. But now, it has come down by 10 per cent," he says.

Lifting spirits

● Muneef Khan

Six apes in pursuit of answers and a much-awaited evolution... that's the theme around which revolves the debut album of Bengaluru-based neo-soul-hip-hop outfit, T.ill Apes. The eight-track EP, titled Lift Off, is a blend of jazz, R&B, and hip-hop, telling the story of the primates leaving the earth on a spaceship.

"Lift Off narrates the 2020 Apeship's journey into space whereas My Ex, Stacy is a ballad about a turbulent relationship with an ex who brings out the best and worst in you. Mary Go Round is about the inner circle, about the realisations and conversations that occur between your mates while you look for a release," says saxophonist Gautam David who joined the outfit in late 2019, a year after the band's inception.

The current line-up features Hanumankind (rapper/ vocalist), Amrith Raghunathan (guitars/ bass/ vocals), Soorya Praveen (bass / synth /vocals), Philip John (keys / vocals), Sange Wangchuk (drums), and Gautam David (saxophone).

Emphasising on the distinct approach towards songwriting and sonic aspects in the album, Raghunathan says the work was aimed at taking the listener on a journey. "The record starts off with high energy and follows a more traditional format of an album in which Side A is more energetic and Side B would be more experimental. Even though Lift Off is in the format of an EP, we wanted it to flow more like an album listening experience," he adds.

Compared to their previous two singles – Scissor Salad and World Domination – the band's approach to their debut EP has been different. The former, says Raghunathan, were just standalone singles written over a longer period of time. "Although it wasn't one particular concept that originally tied all the songs, during the recording process we worked towards the single concept of Lift Off. We wanted it to be structured more cohesively so when we finally stitched the songs together, it dictated a linear pattern. This allowed us to expand on that theme, adding interludes and soundscapes to finish the idea. We always wanted brass elements in this record and that's why we brought in Nikhil Gaikwad on the trumpet. It gave just the right amount of attack and synergy for the commencement of the record," says Raghunathan.

Apart from the genre blend which adds to the distinct sound, what also stands out is the dense instrument arrangement. Praveen says the idea was also to write music which they can translate live. "But we also wanted this record to be as expressive as possible, and so we had to dress it up well," he says, talking about the excessive syncopation. Ask him about the story behind the band's name and he says, "T.ill Apes is short for Till All People Evolve Slightly. Slowly this ridiculous idea turned into an observable paradox. Are we evolving towards the right direction? Or are we evolving at all? Are apes evolving into people or vice versa? We still don't know. Maybe that's for the next record to broach," says Praveen.

Breath of fresh air in B'luru

● Express Features

Here's a small silver lining to the coronavirus pandemic. Air pollution in Bengaluru dropped by 28 per cent during the lockdown, reveals a recent analysis. It was completed by Centre for Research on Energy and Clean Air on behalf of the Health and Environment Alliance and the Global Climate and Health Alliance. In 2019, the Healthy Air Coalition was launched, which installed air quality monitors in the city.

Data for a 45-day period before the lockdown was compared with data from a 45-day period during the lockdown. The results showed a variation in pollution levels across the city. The lowest cut (14 per cent) was at Halasuru hospital whereas Bellandur lake saw the greatest cut (a drop of 75 per cent). Aishwarya Sudhir, coordinator of Healthy Air Coalition, said, "It appears that pollution from PM2.5 has been cut by more than a quarter on average. In some places air quality has actually met WHO safe levels, possibly for the first time in two decades."

The three least polluted locations in terms of PM2.5 levels in Bengaluru during the first 45 days of national lockdown were the monitoring station near Bellandur Lake, monitoring station near Varthur Lake and monitoring station at Hosur Road and Outer Ring road intersection.

Let the kids learn

TUNING IN
Bindu Subramaniam

A few weeks ago, the Karnataka state government banned online education (both live and recorded classes) for children in grade 5 and below. We're still not clear if it's temporary, but it has put students, parents, and teachers in a state of suspended animation. Meanwhile, everywhere else in the world, online schooling continues.

While I have a lot of respect for everything our education minister has done for us, I have some concerns about what things will look like. I understand that access to online education remains a problem in many parts of the country, and that we are incredibly privileged to even have a place in this debate. Our collective solution, however, has to involve a path towards providing that access to more kids -- not denying it to everyone altogether.

As educators, we have spent months looking for ways to make the online medium more meaningful. We built physical activities, designed games for children of all age groups, and found creative learning tools from around the world to ensure that kids use their time indoors meaningfully. Our lesson plans have been customised to include components that help kids cope with the sudden shift in things, the seemingly endless uncertainty, and more. Teachers have been trained to teach and handle logistics of power failure and poor internet, while keeping the classes lively. And we know that it's working, thanks to the hundreds of messages we are receiving from parents, unhappy that online learning is suspended.

As a parent, I am all for the structure that online schooling brings. I am not alone in feeling this way; parents planned a tweetstorm over the weekend, asking for schools to restart. We are working longer hours, juggling too many things, and abandoned the idea of homeschooling on the second day of lockdown (seriously, hats off to Billie Eilish's parents).

Here at SaPa, we are seeing a rise in enrolments. The facts seem to point to one thing -- parents want their kids to be learning. The concern over increased screen time is real, but inevitably, kids are spending more time on their screens anyway. It's better that they use it to build a routine that doesn't involve hours and hours of video games and TV shows.

With no improvement to the situation and a recent spike in cases, we are keeping our kids safely indoors. Indefinitely. Virtual learning is our last hope of giving them some community time, social interaction, and structure.

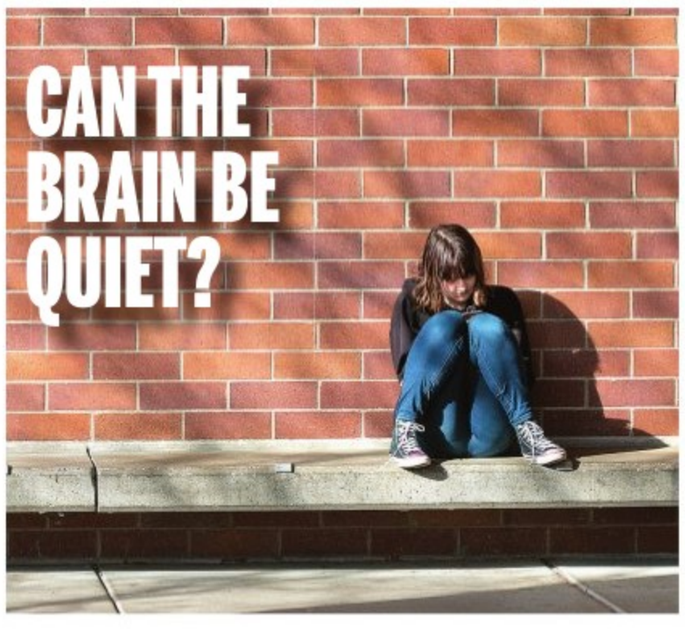
Playing the part

There is nothing that Shraddha Srinath won't do to ace a role. On Instagram, the actor posted an old video of her riding a bike before she fell off the vehicle. She said, "Are you even a bold female character in an Indian film if you don't have at least one bike riding shot?"

SOULFUL

CAN THE BRAIN BE QUIET?



One can observe a cloud, a tree, a flowing river, with a fairly quiet brain. Right? You can see those mountains, the extraordinary light on those mountains, and the brain can be completely still. You have noticed this, haven't you? Now how has that happened? How does the mind, facing something of extraordinary magnitude, like a very, very, very complex machinery, like a marvellous computer, or a magnificent sunset or a mountain, how does it become completely quiet, for even a split second? Have you noticed when you give a child a good toy, how the toy absorbs the child? Then the child is concerned with it, playing with it, and doesn't – you know – he is absorbed by the toy. In the same way the mountain, the beauty of a tree, the flowing waters, absorb the mind and makes the mind by its greatness still. Right? That is, the brain is made still by something. Now can the brain be quiet without an outside factor entering into it? You are following all this? And because they haven't found a way, therefore they say, grace of God, prayers – right? – faith, absorption in Jesus, in this or in that. And we see all that, this absorption by something outside, a dull, a stupefied mind can do this.

We are trying to find out, can this happen: this quiet, free brain that is completely quiet, without any interference. Right? You have understood the question? If it is not quiet one of the factors is dreams. You are following all this? Is this too much? Tant pis, if you don't understand, it's up to you. The brain is active all day, endlessly, the moment it wakes up till it goes to sleep it is on the move. And when you go to bed and go to sleep, the activity of the brain is still going on. Right? The activity of the brain is dreams. Right? The same movement of the day is carried on during sleep. And therefore the brain has never a rest, never a moment it says, 'I've finished, it's over', because it is carrying on the problems which it has accumulated into sleep, and when you wake up those problems go on.

It is a vicious circle. So a brain that is to be quiet must have no dreams at all. Because when the mind is quiet during sleep there is a totally different quality entering into the brain, into the mind. We will go into that a little later, if you are interested.

So we are asking how does it happen that the brain, which is so tremendously, eagerly, enthusiastically active, can naturally, easily, without any effort and suppression, be quiet? I'll show it to you. As we said, during the day it is active endlessly. The moment you wake up, you look out of the window and say, 'Oh, awful rain', or, 'It's a marvellous, lovely morning, but too hot'. You have started.

At that moment when you look out of the window not to say a word, not suppressing words, to realise that by saying, 'What a lovely morning, what a horrible rain', this or that, the mind has started, brain has started. But if you watch out of the window and not say a word, which doesn't mean you suppress the word, just to observe without all the memory of the past rushing, just to observe. Right? So there you have the clue, there you have the key. To observe without the old brain responding. Therefore when the old brain doesn't respond there is a quality of the new mind, new brain coming into being.

REOPENING OF THEATRES MORE IMPORTANT THAN BEGINNING SHOOTS: DARSHAN

The Challenging Star is looking forward to the release of Roberrt as he waits to resume shooting for his historical film, Raja Veera Madakari Nayaka

GOAT FARMING IS THE LATEST HOBBY FOR DARSHAN

Darshan enjoys spending time at his farmhouse with his pet animals. Fans are regaling about the videos of the actor indulging in activities like nurturing the horses. The actor, who is presently fascinated by goat farming, shares that there was a time there were a lot of vacant lands around his farmhouse, which now houses a lot of agriculturists. "I was surprised to learn that most of them have left their cities and are getting back to farming. And, I have realised during this lockdown that all humans wanted was three meals a day, and many have understood the value of an agriculturist. I'm happy to see people getting back to their roots."

A Sharadhaa

For someone who has always kept himself busy with shooting for his projects, Darshan admits he is missing out on being pampered on the sets of his films. "Unlike the one staple breakfast item I get at home, the food on the sets would have a huge variety — idly-vada,upma, dosa etc..." says the Challenging Star, who also expresses his happiness about his fans following the 'Stay Home Stay Safe' policy. "Even in case they want to wish me, they have been doing it while maintaining social distancing."

In an interview with us, the Roberrt hero talks about how despite government allowing shooting to resume, the reopening of theatres is his current priority. "I don't know about others, but I believe reopening of theatres is more important than beginning shooting," says Darshan, adding, "If we start shooting for the projects and keep it ready for release even before theatres reopen, then there will be release issues." The Yajamana actor adds that opening of the theatres will generate a regular flow of releases and the projects already completed will get a good run at the theatres. "Every project then can get a good placement during its release," says the actor.

Rubbishing reports of him planning to resume shooting only in December, Darshan says, "If theatres open from tomorrow, I am ready to begin shooting the very next day." The actor, who is currently awaiting the release of Tharun Kishore Sudhir's Roberrt, is also waiting to resume the shooting for his historical drama, Raja Veera Madakari Nayaka. The latter, made under Rockline Production, is helmed by Rajendra Singh Babu.

Meanwhile, Darshan is also associating with director Prakash Jayaram for a film. "My next focus will be on these two films. It all depends on how we take forward the shooting of Raja Veera Madakari Nayaka. It requires at least 500-600 crew members at a time on the sets, which is not feasible in the current situation. Rockline Venkatesh and Rajendra Singh Babu are chalking out a plan, and we will be discussing the shooting process. The scripting for Prakash's film is also done, and we are ready to go on floors," says Darshan.

A bewitching tale of trauma and heartbreak

Shilajit Mitra

Anvita Dutt's Bulbbul begins in 1881 and picks up twenty years after. Though the film doesn't pause for historical context, the turn of the century setting isn't incidental. It was a time when the Bengali Renaissance was at its peak, with Calcutta the seat of great social and cultural change. In the interiors, though, the old ways persisted. Imperious zamindars ruled with a heavy hand, orthodoxy and superstitions were rife, and the provincial hush of the era hid tales of unspeakable violence.

All of which is effortlessly distilled in an early sequence in the film. Satya (Avinash Tiwary) is returning home after finishing his studies in London. As they cross a dark forest, he's warned about a chudail (a female tree-crawling spirit). Satya laughs it off, but his coachman is tense. He gets down to check while Satya nods off in the back. What happens next serves as a prelude to the film's revisionist gaze: a young aristocrat, dismissive of his roots, getting sized up by his past.

A slender mix of supernatural horror and social commentary, Bulbbul — produced by Anushka Sharma and out on Netflix — is a bewitching tale of trauma and heartbreak. It sings of clipped wings and feet, capturing the injustices of a feudal world built on the subjugation and enslavement of women. Bulbbul (Tiptri Dimri) is the young, forlorn wife of a rich zamindar (Rahul Bose). She was married off as a child and grew a close friendship with her brother-in-law Satya. When their closeness spelled trouble, Satya was sent off abroad and Bulbbul was abandoned by her husband. Years later, when Satya returns, he finds her lording over their ancestral manor, her solitary existence shadowed by a series of murders (ascribed to the feared and arboreal chudail.)

Anvita's film has the allure and vividness of a fairytale. Its simple story is chopped up and told through emotionally-resonant flashbacks. Siddharth Diwan's camera slides through walls like page-turns. Despite the horror story along the edges, the narrative is pivoted on the relationship between Bulbbul and Satya. We see glimpses of a stolen childhood, and it is through the tumultuous wrenching of these characters that the film achieves its payoff. Amit Trivedi's score underlines this wonderfully, with aching strings and a playful chorus.

The literary companionship at the heart of the story is a likely nod to Charulata (the original Rabindranath Tagore novel, Nastanirh, was also written in 1901). The languorous rhythm of Satyajit Ray's film is evoked in one scene, with characters idling in a mango orchard and Bulbbul on a swing. Binodini and Mahendra — Bulbbul's in-laws — are also characters in Tagore's Chokher Bali, another novel about patriarchy, child marriage and the exploitation of women. Paoli Dam is fetching as the green-eyed Binodini, voicing her character's hurt in a scathingly written scene.

Avinash's Satya is less intricate than the embroidery on his waistcoats. His luckless sleuthing becomes a joke for the grown-up Bulbbul, played with leisurely ease by Tripti. It's a striking central performance, distinctly fraught and evocative in the two timelines of the story. Over tenderly drawn passages, we get a sense of her entire life, from a child in a palanquin to the empress of a palace. The film opens with Satya soothing Bulbbul with a scary story. It ends with her taking control of that tale. It's a touching reversal – and a reminder that we are the stories we tell.

Ajay Devgn plays freedom fighter in RRR?

Ajay Devgn

Ajay Devgn has an extended cameo in SS Rajamouli's RRR. Set during the pre-Independence era, the film tells a fictional story of Indian freedom fighters Alluri Seetharamaraju and Komaram Bheem, played by Ram Charan and Jr NTR, respectively. According to reports, Ajay plays a nationalist and the duo's mentor in the film. He appears in the flashback sequences and has shades of his performance from The Legend of Bhagat Singh (2002), reports suggest.

Ajay had shot for the film in January this year. The setting of 20th century Delhi was created at the Ramoji Film City in Hyderabad. "My association with Rajamouli sir dates back to 2012. We've collaborated in many interesting ways since. Working with him in RRR is an honour and pleasure," Ajay had tweeted.

RRR also stars Alia Bhatt as Sita, who plays a pivotal part in the ideological clash between Alluri Seetharamaraju and Komaram Bheem, reports add.

HOME THEATRE

A biweekly column that focuses on the notable content available on the wide variety of streaming platforms around you.

The idea of a virtual after-life is not new to science fiction. Most recently, Alex Garland's Devs touched on the subject, as did BBC's Doctor Who some years ago. While those shows approached the concept in a serious manner, the Amazon Original series Upload comes at it from a more satirical angle. Created by Greg Daniels, who is best known for his work on shows like The Office (US) and Parks and Recreation, Upload is a sci-fi comedy-drama set in the near future. It's the year 2033, and the technology to upload human consciousness to virtual 'heavens' has been perfected. And of course, it has been commercialised. The very first episode opens with a commercial for one of these virtual heavens, the most expensive of them, in fact — Lake View, modelled on the Grand Victorian Hotels of the US and Canada.

A large part of the show is set in Lake View, where the protagonist Nathan Brown (Robbie Amell) ends up after dying in a suspicious car accident. Nora Antony (Andy Allo) is his "angel" in Lake View — something between a customer service representative and a babysitter. Nora, who is still in the land of the living, communicates with Nathan initially as a disembodied voice but soon moves to using her VR avatar. She is responsible for easing his transition from living to upload, something that is especially difficult for people who end up there unprepared. Romantic feelings soon develop between the two. To complicate matters, Nathan's rich, living girlfriend Ingrid is the one paying for his digital afterlife, and she keeps complete control over everything he does, wears, eats, and treats him, as he says at one point, like a doll. Nora also finds out that some of Nathan's memories are corrupted and it appears that his death may not have been an accident after all, giving a tinge of suspense to the show.

The world of Upload is one where capitalism has seemingly been taken to its extreme end. Everything is driven by it. This is a world where it is no longer true that you don't take your money with you when you die. The digital heavens are driven by in-app purchases. You pay a base amount that guarantees you certain free amenities, but anything beyond that requires additional payment. Naturally, there are class divides in the afterlife too. Those who cannot afford to pay for the premium packages get very basic 2 Gig uploads, which puts them in dingy rooms with hardly any comforts, let alone the luxuries of the richer guests. And then there are those who cannot even afford that and have to simply die the old-fashioned way. The tone of the series gets a bit more sober when showing this, though some of it is played for laughs, like the billionaire who spends lavishly on living like a king from medieval times with an AI chamberlain. This kind of unevenness in the tone lets the show down at times. It feels like the series hasn't quite found its voice. The jokes too don't always land. For instance, the Grey Market episode adds little value. I also had issues with the way Nora's casual sex partner, Byron's character is treated.

Upload works much better as a romcom than as satire thanks to the chemistry between Andy Allo and Robbie Amell. The way their romance develops and the conflicts that crop up all follow the classic romcom template that's familiar and relatable. But the show has the potential to be more. The world-building is quite good and makes Upload a rather immersive experience. The future doesn't just have self-driving cars, it has self-riding bicycles too! Lake View feels as real to us as it does to Nathan, and as alarming in its relentless consumerism. All of this can be used for sharper commentary than we get.

That said, Upload does make for an easy binge-watch with only 10 episodes, and all but the first one under 30 minutes long. The season ends on a cliffhanger and a second season has already been greenlit. Given Greg Daniels' track record (both The Office and Parks and Recreation had underwhelming first seasons and drastically improved after that), it is to be hoped that some of the problems will be ironed out and we get a stronger Season 2. The conceit definitely has potential, so here's hoping for a better ever after going forward.
